ROOSEVELT ASKS CONGRESS TO LIFT IMMIGRATION BAR AGAINST CHINESE

Action to 'Correct Historic Mistake' Is 'Important in Winning War and Establishing Secure Peace.'

SAYS CHINA MERITS PREFERRED STATUS

Right to U. S. Citizenship Earned by Nation's Great Contributions to Decency and Freedom, He Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—President Roosevelt gave his unqualified support today to legislation to repeal the Chinese exclusion law and let Chinese residents of this country become American citizens. He told Congress in a message: "I regard this legislation as important in the cause of winning the war and of establishing a secure peace."

By repealing the exclusion laws, he said, "we can correct a historic mistake and silence the distorted Japanese propaganda." The House Immigration Committee already has approved a bill to repeal the exclusion act of 1882, let Chinese enter this country on a quota basis, and grant citizenship to Chinese now residing in America. About 105 Chinese could enter the United States annually under the quota.

3 BROTHERS GET 10 YEARS IN FAULTY PLANE PARTS CASE

HOUSE APPROVES CREDIT FOR ALL ON VICTORY TAX

Bill Viewed as Step Toward Repeal of Levy Treasury Would Include in Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Refund through immediate tax credits of a part of the 5 per cent Victory tax, ranging from 25 to 40 per cent, was voted by the House today without a dissenting voice and sent to the Senate. The action was regarded by some tax authorities as a forerunner of an effort for outright repeal of the Victory tax. The Treasury has proposed that this levy be integrated with higher income tax rates. Under the measure passed today, the Government would assume that all Victory taxpayers had made the necessary war bond purchases, payments on insurance and debts necessary to qualify them for the credit. Therefore, in the next tax returns all taxpayers would take the credit that originally was intended as a postwar refund.

The credit amounts to 25 per cent for single persons, 40 per cent for married persons, 2 per cent for each dependent, with the rebate in no case to exceed $1000. The House also passed and sent to the Senate bills providing for extension of time for filing for relief under the excess profits law and removing for the duration of the war the duty on ship repairs and the equipment installed in foreign ports.

Unyielding opposition to the administration's $10,500,000,000 new tax program, coupled with growing agitation over a 10 per cent retail sales tax marked the opening of the second week of congressional effort to find more billions for battle.

Two Democrats of the House Ways and Means Committee, which originally tax legislation squared off on opposite sides of the sales tax issue, bracing for a showdown fight.

Representative Robertson (Dem.), Virginia, announced he would urge the committee to adopt the sales tax as a substitute for the administration program which would increase rates on individual and corporate income and on so-called luxury items, such as liquor and tobacco. He was the first corporate member to declare himself publicly for this levy. Representative Dingell (Dem.), Michigan, countered by asserting the sales tax principle was "without equity, honesty or decency. I think the sales levy a curse, the most fiendish conception of what is fair in taxation. I will surrender my seat in Congress before I will vote for a sales tax."

Cleveland War Plant Officers Convicted of Sabotage in Supplying Defective Casting.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11 (AP).—United States District Judge Emerich B. Freed today sentenced the National Bronze & Aluminum Co.'s former president, John L. Schmeller, and Schmeller's two brothers, Edward and Frank, to 10 years each in a penitentiary after a jury convicted them of violating wartime sabotage laws. Judge Freed also imposed fines of $10,000 each on the three men, refused to permit their release on bail and denied motions for new trials.

The brothers gave no outward evidence of emotion. Frank Schmeller was the concern's general manager and Edward Schmeller was its chief metallurgist until they were relieved of their jobs in a company reorganization earlier this year. A jury last week found the Schmellers had illegally provided the Packard Motor Co. with a welded casting for a Rolls-Royce warplane engine. The brothers, the company and four lesser officials were charged with "knowingly, wilfully, unlawfully and feloniously" making castings "in a defective manner," "with reason to believe that their act might injure, interfere with and obstruct the United States and its associate nation, Great Britain, in preparing for and carrying on the war."

John Schmeller told Judge Freed: "I have told the truth and anything this Court decides is perfectly fair. I only wish to say that I did not produce defective castings to hurt the war effort. I worked my life out, got high blood pressure in doing it, and this is the outcome."

MRS. ROOSEVELT 59 TODAY, CELEBRATES WITH NEW HAIR-DO

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt celebrated her fifty-ninth birthday at Hyde Park, N. Y., today with a new hair-do. Like almost every woman in the country, her hair is a bit shorter than before. Like many, she has tried the new cold-wave instead of a regular permanent. The cold-wave takes about half an hour longer and waves to the very ends, according to the local beauty salon which does Mrs. Roosevelt's hair. Mrs. Roosevelt had her cold-wave about two weeks ago and set for it about four hours.

Thief Takes Car Carrying Bibles. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11 (AP).—The Sabbath day theft of St. W. Porter's automobile may yet prove the thief's conscience. Porter is a Bible salesman, and the rear seat of the car contained Bibles and religious tracts.

Although the nationality of the beheaded man has not been officially disclosed, one report had said he was an American. The wording of Curtin's statement, however, would indicate he was an Australian.

NAVY SAYS IT HAS NO WORD KIMMEL WANTS TRIAL NOW

No Letter Received From Marine Corps Colonel Who Said Admiral Had Retained Him. WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Navy, asked about published reports that Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel is requesting immediate trial by court-martial, said that no letter had been received up to mid-morning. He was naval commander at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack. At Denver, Col. Harry Leonard, Marine Corps, who reported he had been retained by Kimmel as counsel, said a letter had been written last week but declined to discuss its contents, referring questions to Secretary of the Navy Knox. Kimmel, now associated with a New York engineering firm, was not available at his New York office for comment.

SIX-PARTY RULE FOR ITALY URGED BY ANTI-FASCISTS

Tendency Toward Left Will Be Definite—King Retains His Rank on Tolerance.

BADOGGIO BACKED ONLY DURING CRISIS

Many Important Political Leaders Are Trapped in German-Held Territory.

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN. The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1943. NAPLES, Oct. 8 (Delayed).—Although they are willing to support the Badoglio Government during the present period of crisis, decent, objective, anti-Fascist Italian political leaders and functionaries agree that it should give way at the first possible moment, if not immediately, to a Government representing Italy's six recognized political parties and expressing, in so far as possible, popular thought. Handicapped by 21 years of autocratic one-party government in Italy and confused by the sudden emancipation, leaders of political thought in this country naturally have not had time to complete their various programs. Parties are divided among themselves and many leaders, who emerged from obscurity during the 43 days between July 25 and Sept. 8, are trapped in Germany-held territory. Those people, who are free to express their opinions, are of one mind regarding the desirability of constructing a democratic Government quickly.

Great differences of opinion exist regarding the form that Italy's future Government should take. Even ardent Republicans, however, seem resigned to temporary continuance of the monarchy. The personal position of the present King is strictly another matter. The Allied policy of benevolence toward the Italian King and Marshal Badoglio and the mass of the Italian bureaucracy is subject to the same criticism by anti-Fascists as that which meted out policy in North Africa yesterday. Momentarily, however, this criticism is strictly philosophical in tone and tempered by the feeling that things won't necessarily continue on the same basis after the liberation of Italy. It would be stupid to deny that the King has lost whatever popularity he enjoyed among the Italian people and that he is still held responsible for having tolerated the regime of the advent of Fascism, but its malfeasance. As things are, he retains his rank on tolerance.

AUSTRALIA NOT TO DISCLOSE NAME OF MAN JAPS BEHEADED

Next of Kin Informed; Curtin Indicates Flyer Was Australian.

SYDNEY, Oct. 11 (AP).—Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia said today that the name of the Allied aviator who was beheaded recently by the Japanese had been disclosed by the next of kin. Curtin said it was the policy of the Australian Government to release information about atrocities by the enemy. He added the name would not be published by the Government, but the next of kin could be assured there were no bounds to the sympathy felt for them, which would be nation wide.

Parents Urge Army to Tell Them More Than Just 'Missing in Action'

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11 (AP).—Forty men and women—the parents of missing service men—were crowded into the little home of Mrs. Ralph Herrick. Most of the women gripped worn and crumpled "missing in action" telegrams from the War Department. Mrs. Herrick had called them together in the hope they might jointly appeal to the War Department for more information. "We are living in the stillest silence," she said. "We want only the truth. . . . We think a way must be found to us more. It's the waiting and not knowing that hurts. . . . We are the forgotten mothers."

NAZIS HOLD ALLIES AT VOLTURNO 5TH ARMY GAINS IN FLANKING DRIVE REDS SMASH INTO SUBURBS OF GOMEL

RUSSIANS ADVANCE ALSO ON VITEBSK, AND EXTEND HOLD ACROSS DNIEPER

Town on Bank of Sozh Outside Rail Center in North Taken—Soviet Army Reinforced in Kiev Area.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Red Army today smashed into the outskirts of Gomel, strategic railway center in lower White Russia, and extended its bridgeheads on the western side of the Germans' broken Dnieper River line, Moscow announced tonight.

Novo-Belitsa, a suburb of Gomel on the left bank of the Sozh River, was occupied, said a communique broadcast by Moscow radio and recorded here by Reuters. On the Vitebsk front the Russian roll-on through 40 more villages, it said.

Russian positions were reported considerably improved on the western side of the Dnieper as the Soviet forces fanned out to consolidate their bridgeheads.

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Red Army of the Dnieper River greatly aided by large forces of guerrilla warriors behind the German lines, pushed reinforcements in men and material across the river today to aid in solidifying bridgeheads on the west bank.

The captured area on the west side of the river north of Kiev was rapidly being turned into a large operational zone, threatening sectors to the north and south.

On the front to the north, two Soviet columns advancing on the White Russia City of Vitebsk from the northeast and southeast gained four to seven miles and captured 140 villages yesterday, it was announced.

The Red Army units southeast of Vitebsk were at Liozno, 25 miles away. The capture of the town of Krasnopol, important rail center on the Vitebsk-Gomel line, also was announced and the Russian troops were in position here for a thrust at the German bastion at the junction town of Orsha, 28 miles away.

Sixty miles north of Vitebsk the Russians driving from Nevel captured the town.

ROBERT LOWELL PLEADS GUILTY ON DRAFT CHARGE; FACES TERM

Failed to Report For Induction—Wrote to Government of His Objections to Serving.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP).—Robert Trall Spence Lowell Jr., cousin of the late A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University, and of Post Army Lt. Lowell, pleaded guilty in United States District Court today to an indictment charging failure to report for induction under the Selective Service act. Judge Samuel Mandelbaum set next Wednesday for sentencing. Lowell faces a maximum sentence of five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine. When the 26-year-old writer failed to appear for pleading last week, Judge Mandelbaum issued a warrant for his arrest. Assistant U. S. Attorney Benjamin Friedman said, however, that Lowell's absence had been the result of a misdirected notice mailed by the government, and that Lowell communicated with Federal authorities as soon as he learned of the warrant.

Friedman said Lowell wrote a "declaration of personal responsibility" stressing his opposition to participation in the war, and sent copies of it to Federal authorities and newspapers on Sept. 8, the day he was to have reported to his New York draft board for induction.

TIRPITZ DAMAGED BY BRITISH MIDGET UNDERSEAS CRAFT

Submarines Slip Into Norwegian Fjord, Attack Main Nazi Fleet Units—3 of Raiders Lost.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—The 1000-ton German battleship Tirpitz was damaged Sept. 22 in an attack by British midget submarines, a communique announced today. The daring attack was carried out on the main units of the German battle fleet in their protected anchorages in Alten Fjord in Northern Norway. "Involving hazards of the first order," the announcement said. "Under-water damage" was inflicted on the Tirpitz, it added. Presumably torpedoes were used.

The day after the under-water raid a German official communique announced an attack by submarines had been repulsed and prisoners taken.

Today's British announcement said three of the midget submarines had not returned and were presumed to be lost, although some of the crews possibly had been taken prisoner.

Result: "Insufficient evidence was available at that time to assess the result of the attack, as operations were still proceeding," said the British statement.

"Interrogation of crews of the midget submarines which took part in the exploit and subsequent photographic reconnaissance now leave no doubt, despite enemy claims to the contrary, that the attack met with success."

"Air photographs taken after the attack show the Tirpitz, which had not moved from her anchorage, surrounded by thick oil which covered the fjord where she lay and extended over a distance of more than two miles from her berth. "Photographs also show a number of small unidentified craft alongside the battleship, possibly repair ships or ships to provide power and light."

Personnel who took part in the operation report that on Sept. 22 while still in the immediate vicinity of the anchorage they heard a series of very heavy detonations.

Danish King to Wear Yellow Star Himself if Nazis Put It on Jews

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 11 (AP).—King Christian of Denmark was quoted by a Danish refugee today as saying: "If the Germans want to put the yellow Jewish star in Denmark I and my whole family will wear it as a sign of the highest distinction." (The Nazis have forced Jews in other occupied countries to wear stars as a means of identification.) The refugee said that King Christian, who has protested against Germany's persecution of Danish Jews, made the statement to leaders of the Danish Lutheran Church.

CLARK'S MEN TAKE HILL TOWN NORTH OF CALORE; MUD SLOWS OPERATIONS

Germans Reported Massing for Counterattack—Eighth Army Fights Way Forward in Termini Sector.

By NOLAN NORGAARD. ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 11 (AP).—Flooding forward on foot through Italian mud which made motor transport almost useless, and against stiffening German resistance, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army captured Pontelandolfo, 12 miles northwest of Benevento, in a flanking move against the enemy's Volturno River line, Allied headquarters announced today.

Heavy going also was encountered by the Eighth Army of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery on the Adriatic front where gains of two to three miles were chalked up against the enemy who was being put under constant pressure.

Along the swollen Volturno, where the Fifth Army has established a 44-mile front, Gen. Clark's troops made no fresh gains, official reports indicated.

Patrols already have been skimming the Germans on the north bank of the river, but Clark's forces were mainly engaged in consolidating their positions and laboriously bringing up guns and ammunition through the mud.

The United Nations radio at Algiers reported that artillery duels were raging along the Volturno River and that German forces appeared to be massing for a counterattack.

River Line Strongly Held.

The crossing of the Volturno, 20 miles north of Naples, in force in a frontal attack appeared to be a difficult task, with enemy artillery concentrations prepared to lay down a withering fire on minutely charted bridging sites. The winding stream, varying in width from 100 feet to 200 yards, and with steep banks 10 to 15 feet high at most places, presented a major military obstacle, particularly at its present high water stage. The water normally is only waist deep, but recent rains have greatly increased its depth.

Nevertheless, Clark was reported confident of his ability to beat the 24 days required by Garibaldi to get his army across the obstacle in 1858 when he was engaged in a march on Rome from Naples in his campaign to unify Italy.

Yanks North of Calore. Pontelandolfo, on the eastern flank of the Volturno where it turns southward, lies in the fold of the hills between that stream and the Tammara River which

U. S. PLANES DOWN 102 NAZI CRAFT IN RAIDING COESFELD AND MUENSTER

30 Bombers Missing—
Total American Loss in Three Days Is 90 Big Craft Against Destruction of 335 Fighters.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—American Flying Fortresses and their escorting Thunderbolts, in shooting down 102 enemy raids on Coesfeld and Munster yesterday, increased to 335 the number of Nazi aircraft destroyed by the United States Eighth Air Force in the last three days. American losses in the same period totaled 90 bombers.

London tabulations showed the Germans in the last eight days had lost 559 aircraft against a loss of 241 Allied bombers and fighters. Allied bombers carry crews of eight to 12 men each and their cost, approximately $250,000 each, is several times that of Nazi fighters.

In yesterday's raids on the two German transportation centers, 30 Fortresses and two Thunderbolts were lost. The Fortresses destroyed 51, the Thunderbolts 21 of the more than 200 interceptors. The American formations also attacked an enemy airfield near Enschede, Holland.

In addition to taking a heavy toll of German fighter strength in aerial combat, the Allied air forces struck hard at fighter production plants, two of which—the huge Focke-Wulf factory at Marienburg in East Prussia and the Aircraft Component Parts Factory at Anklam on the Baltic Sea—were wiped out by American bombers Saturday.

German Claims. The German communiqué, broadcast from Berlin, said 51 Allied planes, nearly all of them four-engine bombers, were shot down yesterday in attacks over Western Germany. The Germans said 208 Allied planes had been shot down during the last three days.

A Fortress pilot in the Muenster raid reported a shell from a rocket gun on a Nazi fighter clipped four feet off the right wing of his plane.

Among flyers credited with downing one fighter was Lt. Philip L. Larson of Quincy, Ill.

While the size of the attacking American formations was not officially disclosed, there was reason to believe that it may have approximated the record concentrations of 400 bombers which hammered German targets on each of the two preceding days.

On Friday, Fortresses and Liberators bombed the Stuka factory in Bremen and submarine ship-building yards at Vegesack nearby, and on Saturday, American bombers flew a round trip of 1800 miles, their deepest penetration of Nazi territory—to hit the former Free City of Danzig, the former Polish city of Gdynia and other targets in Eastern Germany.

In a quick follow-up to Friday's American daylight blow, the British returned to Bremen that night and also hit the rubber and railroad center of Hanover for the fourth time in less than three weeks.

The Americans went out by daylight yesterday only a few hours after Berlin was raided by night-flying R. A. F. Mosquito bombers for the fourteenth time in less than a month.

The sizzling three-day pace by the Americans brought showers of praise—and the most space yet—from the British press, which usually is partial to its own mighty R. A. F.

A further indication of the air-borne destruction being dealt German industry came from Air Ministry news service reports on the Aug. 9, Sept. 5 and Sept. 23 R. A. F. raids on the twin German industrial cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen.

More than 300 industrial plants were damaged, including those making tanks and submarine engines, and chemical units of I. F. G. Farben which stretch for three miles along the waterfront.

The main railroad stations in both cities, which are among the most important communications areas in Germany, were badly damaged and warehouses and docks on both sides of the Rhine River were leveled, burned out or showing gaping bomb holes, the report said.

126 VESSELS SUNK IN RAIDS ON NANTES

BERN, Oct. 11 (AP).—German frontier reports attributed to German naval officers said yesterday Nazi losses under the blasting American Flying Fortresses gave Nantes, France, in September included less than 126 light warships and some of the world's most noted industrial plants.

(Photographs made by American flyers during attacks on Nantes and La Pallice Sept. 16 showed that the Fortresses sank a new Nazi destroyer and scored possible hits on three large enemy vessels and a number of harbor craft. Main damage was registered on shipbuilding and repair yards, docks, warehouses and railroad yards. Twin daylight raids followed Sept. 23.)

The frontier reports said the vessels destroyed ranged up to 2000 tons and included torpedo boats, torpedo boat destroyers, minelayers, minesweepers, speed boats and patrol boats.

Among the port installations destroyed, the report continued, was the Chantiers de Bretagne, which makes and repairs light war craft. Also reported destroyed was the research station, boiler and foundry attached to Chantiers de Bre-

Allied Moves in Italy

Arrows indicate American Fifth Army occupation of Pontelandolfo, coincident with seizure of both banks of the Volturno River, on the western end of the Italian battlefield. Broken arrow points route of a possible thrust up the Volturno River valley. In the east, the British Eighth Army made small gains, despite mud which hampered operations along most of the front.

Allies Held at Volturmo, But Flanking Drive Gains

flows in a parallel direction, and about six miles north of one bend of the Calore River. The capture of Pontelandolfo placed the Allies astride an arterial highway which extends westward to the coast and which must be defended strongly by the Germans to prevent the flanking of their Volturmo line.

In the drive northward the Fifth Army gained control of a wedge of territory in which the towns of Campolattaro, Fragneto, Reano, Casalodi and Pescocostanzo were captured.

Planes Blast Gun Posts. Resorting to tactics used with extraordinary success in Tunisia and Sicily, the Allies sent fleets of medium, light and fighter bombers flying artillery to blast dozens of enemy gun positions along most of the front.

These attacks were directed particularly at a point about five miles north of Capua, indicating the Germans had massed guns there in effort to prevent any crossing of the Volturno at Capua, bridge town on the main Naples-Rome highway.

The Germans were said to be using Italian labor to build heavy defenses above the Volturmo, and an Allied spokesman in prospect declared a major battle is in prospect here.

Eighth Army Front. Northeast of Benevento to the Adriatic just above Termoli, the British Eighth Army advanced steadily, capturing many towns as San Marco, Gambatesa, Colletorto, Larino and Gugliese—the latter inland and well west of the Biferno River.

"Eighth Army patrols are pushing forward vigorously," the Allied communiqué said, adding: "The enemy continues to fight hard and is using broken and difficult country to assist his defense. Demolitions still are being met on a heavy scale."

An air communiqué said that the Foundrie Nantes, which employed more than 2500 men and the world's largest locomotive building works.

WAR ON U-BOATS PAVES WAY FOR FINAL BLOW, PRAVDA SAYS

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP).—Commenting on the latest Roosevelt-Churchill report on submarine warfare, the Communist party organ Pravda today said the early crushing of the Germans is an actual possibility and should be carried out in short order.

In view of the United States and British victory at sea, the article headed "Early crushing of the Hitlerite Sea Strategy" said, "Great Britain and the United States have an overwhelming and increasing superiority of forces over their enemies in all theaters of naval warfare—in particular all the prerequisites for the activation of the strategy of our Allies in military operations against the main enemy, Hitlerite Germany."

"The crushing of this enemy by the joint blows of the countries of the anti-Hitlerite coalition is an actual possibility which can and should be carried out in short order. This would save Europe and humanity from new, hideous sacrifices which are inevitable if the war drags on unnecessarily long."

9 PCT. OF U. S. FOOD SUPPLY TO ALLIES IN 8 MONTHS OF '43

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Nine per cent of the country's total food supply, in terms of dollar value, was shipped to our Allies during the first eight months of 1943, the Lend-Lease Administration reported yesterday.

The report showed heavy shipments of pork products, amounting to 15 per cent of the total supply. Dried fruits exported under lend-lease amounted to 21 per cent of the stocks and lamb-mutton exports took 12 per cent.

Shipments of beef and veal amounted to 1 per cent of the country's production. Milk products represented 3 per cent. Less than 1 per cent of United States butter went abroad, but 11 per cent of the cheese production was shipped, it said.

NAPLES, Oct. 11 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark and other Allied commanders attended Catholic services for American troops yesterday at the cathedral of San Gennaro in the presence of the Cardinal of Naples.

400 BIG BOMBERS IN U. S. AIR FLEETS RAIDING GERMANY

Record Forces Sent Out From Britain, Eaker Discloses—He Predicts Invasion on Channel.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Predicting an Allied invasion of Germany "across the English Channel and the North Sea," Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker disclosed today that the United States Eighth Air Force sent fleets of more than 400 bombers—its largest attacking forces on record—against Nazi targets both Friday and Saturday.

On Friday Britain-based American Flying Fortresses and Liberators bombed the Stuka factory in Bremen, Germany, and the submarine ship-building yards at Vegesack nearby.

Saturday the American bombers, in their deepest penetration of Nazi territory, flew a round-trip of 1800 miles to blast the ports of the former Free City of Danzig, the former Polish port of Gdynia and other targets in Eastern Germany.

4000 Men in Air. Gen. Eaker, commander of the Eighth Air Force, in a trans-Atlantic broadcast for the Columbia Broadcasting System, said there were 4000 men in each mission. United States heavy bombers have crews of 10 each.

Friday was the first anniversary of the Americans' 100-bomber raid on Lille, France.

The size of the force would indicate that the weight of bombs dropped each day possibly amounted to as much as 1800 tons. Forcible attacks are being made on the German-held town, cleaning out some machine-gun nests and snipers en route. Sappers found the town square littered with a mass of mines and booby traps, most of which were prepared hastily with the trip wire crudely concealed or left lying in the open.

This poor workmanship, contrasting sharply to the Germans' customary ingenious planting of mines, was a further indication that the enemy was forced to fall back from the town long before expected.

A counterattack was launched within a few moments. German mortars began laying shells in the square with terrific speed and, from farther back, enemy artillery worked inward, street by street, at ranges obviously carefully calculated in advance.

Capt. John Norton of Norfolk, Va., said, "They had guns zeroed right down on every street. It was almost uncanny to see a salvo hit one place, then the next one and then jump over to a street closer to the square and so on right through the town."

The American patrols fell back, joining the main force at the railway station.

A full scale German counter-attack began. Enemy infantry, crossing the river into town by three routes, advanced under cover of mortar fire until they were close enough to the American line to throw hand grenades. The barrage, meanwhile, subsided.

The last American to fall back from the most advanced post at the town square was Capt. Neil McRoberts, of New Orleans, who stayed behind to pick up and carry a wounded man.

He saw the Germans streaming across the damaged railway bridges.

Practically emulating the mass attacks of World War One, the Germans hurled themselves against the American line in close formation through the next two hours. The street leading to the railroad station and the fields surrounding were carpeted with grey-green-clad bodies.

Where they reached the American positions it was man to man with bayonets and bladed knives. Two hours later, when darkness fell, the Americans still were holding the railroad line.

Allied artillery, which had been rushed up from the rear during the afternoon, then began shelling the town even more severely than the Germans had hit prior to their attack.

"It certainly was sweet music to our ears," said Lt. Scott Cole, of Valparaiso, Ind.

In Villa, the American patrol slipped into the center of the town and there was no resistance.

HARRIMAN PREDICTS CLOSER U. S.-RUSSIAN MILITARY TIES

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—W. Averell Harriman (Dem.), United States ambassador to Soviet Russia today said he prepared to leave for Moscow as he prepared to leave for Moscow as a delegate to the forthcoming tripartite conference.

"As the forces in the East and West approach closer to Germany, the time will arrive for even closer military collaboration between our countries," he said.

Two hours later, when darkness fell, the Americans still were holding the railroad line.

Allied artillery, which had been rushed up from the rear during the afternoon, then began shelling the town even more severely than the Germans had hit prior to their attack.

CONGRESSMAN WANTS HOUSE TO HEAR TOURING SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Representative Russell (Dem.), Mississippi, proposed in a resolution drafted today that the world-touring Senators Russell (Dem.), Georgia; Chandler (Dem.), Kentucky; Mead (Dem.), New York; Lodge (Rep.), Massachusetts; and Brewster (Rep.), Maine, be invited to address the House behind closed doors.

A similar appearance before an executive session of the Senate produced a wide variance among the Senators as to their ideas on war operations.

NAZI INFANTRYMEN CHARGE U. S. LINES FOR TWO HOURS

Yanks Hold in Fighting With Bayonets and Rifle Butts—Enemy Had Recrossed Volturmo.

By BELMAN MORIN. WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 9 (Delayed) (AP).—All doubt that the Germans intend to try to hold a line along the north bank of the Volturno River has been dispelled by the savage fighting through which American doughboys won Arnone, on the south bank.

The battle began the afternoon of Oct. 6, when the infantry jumped ahead of Allied armor. Their patrols filtered to the heart of the German-held town, cleaning out some machine-gun nests and snipers en route. Sappers found the town square littered with a mass of mines and booby traps, most of which were prepared hastily with the trip wire crudely concealed or left lying in the open.

This poor workmanship, contrasting sharply to the Germans' customary ingenious planting of mines, was a further indication that the enemy was forced to fall back from the town long before expected.

A counterattack was launched within a few moments. German mortars began laying shells in the square with terrific speed and, from farther back, enemy artillery worked inward, street by street, at ranges obviously carefully calculated in advance.

Capt. John Norton of Norfolk, Va., said, "They had guns zeroed right down on every street. It was almost uncanny to see a salvo hit one place, then the next one and then jump over to a street closer to the square and so on right through the town."

The American patrols fell back, joining the main force at the railway station.

A full scale German counter-attack began. Enemy infantry, crossing the river into town by three routes, advanced under cover of mortar fire until they were close enough to the American line to throw hand grenades. The barrage, meanwhile, subsided.

The last American to fall back from the most advanced post at the town square was Capt. Neil McRoberts, of New Orleans, who stayed behind to pick up and carry a wounded man.

He saw the Germans streaming across the damaged railway bridges.

Practically emulating the mass attacks of World War One, the Germans hurled themselves against the American line in close formation through the next two hours. The street leading to the railroad station and the fields surrounding were carpeted with grey-green-clad bodies.

Where they reached the American positions it was man to man with bayonets and bladed knives. Two hours later, when darkness fell, the Americans still were holding the railroad line.

Allied artillery, which had been rushed up from the rear during the afternoon, then began shelling the town even more severely than the Germans had hit prior to their attack.

"It certainly was sweet music to our ears," said Lt. Scott Cole, of Valparaiso, Ind.

In Villa, the American patrol slipped into the center of the town and there was no resistance.

U. S. FORCE IN POSSESSION OF ALL OF KOLOMBANGARA

Not a Shot Fired—No Japanese Found Alive—Full Control of Southern, Central Solomons to Americans.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Oct. 11, (AP).—Moving in on the heels of the fleeing Japanese, American forces have taken possession of Kolombangara Island, with its Vila airfield, thus achieving complete control of the Central and Southern Solomons.

Not a shot was fired in this occupation, which Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reported began on Oct. 6, when the Yanks moved into Vila airfield, and was concluded Oct. 9 with the occupation of the entire island, an area of about 100 square miles. Not a Japanese soldier was seen alive.

Among the shell-shattered palms and along the bomb-cratered Vila landing strip, however, were found cannon-pieces, stores of ammunition and other war supplies—evidence that the enemy had fled precipitately from positions which for him long since had lost any practical military value.

Weeks of Planes. There, too, were found the wrecks of 10 enemy aircraft in testimony to the long and futile labor spent by the Japanese in trying to develop Vila as a base for fighter planes to protect the Northern Solomons holdings and to escort their bombers on Southward runs.

Although Gen. MacArthur's communiqué did not make this point clear, the initial landings on Kolombangara probably sprang from American-held Arundel, hardly a mile away from Vila across narrow Blackett Strait.

The invaders scarcely could have expected much opposition. For more than a month American planes, patrol boats and destroyers had been intercepting enemy barges stealing northward from Kolombangara and had sunk hundreds of the small craft with their cargoes of troops and supplies.

A dispatch from William H. Hipple, Associated Press correspondent at the South Pacific headquarters of Adm. William F. Halsey, said it was estimated unofficially that that possibly half of the Japanese garrison at Kolombangara, once estimated at 10,000 men, managed to escape. The rest, Hipple said, probably were killed, many by drowning.

End of 13-Week Campaign. Three days ago MacArthur announced the Japanese had fled Vila and all the southern half of Kolombangara and were continuing to withdraw from the northern portion. Finally a Tokyo communiqué acknowledged that Japan had completed a "successful transfer" of her troops from Kolombangara and from Vella Lavella Island to the northwest as well.

The very last of the Japanese did not get away from Kolombangara, however, until the American occupation process, and they, like thousands before them, got away only to their doom. A headquarters spokesman said a torpedo boat encountered a final barrage of 29 enemy soldiers off the island the night of Oct. 8 and sank it.

That wrote the end to the 13-week Central Solomons campaign begun June 30 with American landings on Rendova Island, opposite New Georgia and its Munda airfield, the first big objective.

Today, of all the island chain from Guadalcanal north, only loosely-defended Choiseul and the Bougainville group remain in enemy hands.

Vila's Importance. In Vila, the Americans gained another airfield strategically situated to carry the attack northward to the Japanese bastion of Bougainville and even to Rabaul, New Britain, keystone of enemy defenses in the Southwest Pacific.

Vila, together with Munda airfield and the Balroko supply center on New Georgia, formed the triangular base of Japanese strength in the Central Solomons. With the capture of Munda Aug. 5 and the fall of Balroko not long after, Vila became seriously imperiled.

Later, as the Americans seized Vella Lavella Island to the northwest and Arundel, scarcely a mile away, the Japanese position grew virtually untenable, and the enemy began to withdraw from Kolombangara.

Announcement of the seizure of Kolombangara closely followed a Berlin broadcast of a Tokyo dispatch indicating that Adm. Halsey's forces also have occupied Santa Isabel Island some 100 miles to the south and east. The Tokyo dispatch said Japanese naval aircraft had bombed American positions at Rekata Bay there last Friday.

Reports from Allied sources have told of diminishing and finally nonexistent Japanese opposition to American air raids on the Rekata seaplane base, from which it had been deduced that the enemy was evacuating the island.

Enemy Air Attacks. While the Americans pressed their final cleanup of the Central Solomons, the enemy retaliated with a series of air attacks on Allied positions.

New Georgia, Vella Lavella and Guadalcanal came under Japanese bombardments, as did Goodenough and Woodlark islands off the southeastern coast of New Guinea. The communiqué, however, described each attack as "ineffective."

On the New Guinea land front, an advance by Australian forces along the Ramu Valley toward Madang on the north coast of the big island was hindered by enemy demolition of bridges across swift flowing mountain streams in the line of march.

In the vicinity of Allied-held Finschhafen, south and east of Madang, fighter and attack bomber planes joined with ground troops to clear out small remnants of enemy troops scattered through the hills outside the town.

23 U. S. SOLDIERS KILLED, 30 INJURED BY MINE IN NAPLES

Big Charge of Dynamite in Tunnel Wrecks Wing of Building Quarters Troops.

By BELMAN MORIN. NAPLES, Oct. 10 (Delayed) (AP).—Twenty-three American officers and men were killed and more than 30 injured when a heavy charge of dynamite exploded today, demolishing an entire wing of the Naples building where they were quartered.

The blast was the fourth major explosion due to a delayed action mine since the arrival of the Allied Army here.

Today's blast occurred as crowds were passing the building en route to a cathedral. There has been no estimate of the number of civilian casualties. The total of military deaths is expected to rise when all the debris is cleared away.

Engineers estimated that the Germans had planted at least two tons of dynamite in the cellar of the building. A specially constructed tunnel concealed the cache. The explosion, while wrecking one wing of the building, left others virtually untouched.

Army engineers are working day and night inspecting scores of buildings in Naples where explosives may have been planted. An explosion Thursday in the Naples postoffice killed at least 50 civilians and a few soldiers. Last Wednesday a bomb exploded in a principal street after Lt. Gen. Clark had passed by. Earlier a hotel which the Germans evidently expected the Allies to use as staff headquarters was blown up by a mine.

MORE NAZI MINES LIKELY TO GO OFF.

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN. The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1943.

NAPLES, Oct. 11.—An unpleasant feature of the Italian campaign has been provided by "hidden death" devices planted by the Germans all over districts they have abandoned.

Since the Germans use 21-day detonating mechanisms, more mines can go off any second. This game will probably continue throughout the war on the continent unless the Germans are persuaded it will expose their own cities to systematic demolition.

QUEENY ASSERTS HE BASED MEMO ON MILLER SPEECH

Says Congressman Sent Him an Advance Copy of Address on 'Loaded'
Questionnaire.

'ACCUSES WILLKIE OF SIDESTEPPING

Plans to Hear Him Friday
Night—40 in House
Hear Representative's
Belated Talk.

Edgar M. Queney, wealthy chemical manufacturer and Republican leader, said today that he got material for his memorandum, sent to Wendell L. Willkie Sept. 27 and relating to the "loaded" questionnaire of Missouri Republicans previously addressed to Willkie, from an advance copy of a speech delivered belatedly in the House of Representatives at Washington today by Congressman Louis E. Miller of St. Louis.

Miller's speech, prepared last month and circulated among Republican leaders here, was heard by fewer than 40 House members of both parties, who happened to be in their seats shortly before noon, and was not the occasion of any questions or discussion. A remark by Representative Clare Hoffman (Rep.) of Michigan, not heard in the press gallery, was the only interruption.

Queney's statement solved the riddle which, as told in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, was posed by the almost identical content of the Miller speech and of the memorandum which he sent to Willkie. The Monsanto Chemical Co., board chairman arrived in St. Louis at noon from Stuttgart, Ark.

Plans to Hear Willkie. Queney said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he intended to attend Willkie's meeting Friday night in the Auditorium Opera House, and hoped to have a personal talk with Willkie. "I think he's a great fellow," he remarked, "and I'd like to see him."

In a prepared statement commenting on Willkie's letter to him which he said he had not received, but had read in the Post-Dispatch—Queney denied that the questions put to the 1940 presidential nominee by the St. Louis party leaders were, as Willkie has charged, "a series of questions which were honestly intended, to find where Willkie stands on issues which the questioners considered vital. He said of Willkie's letter:

"(Willkie) sidestepped by publicly calling the questions 'ridiculous,' although he found nothing ridiculous or ambiguous in the questions when he offered to come to Missouri and answer them off the record."

How Men Were Drafted. As to the Miller speech and the Queney memorandum to Willkie, the St. Louis industrialist said Miller sent him an advance copy of the speech which Miller had said he had delivered last Thursday, and that he then met with other Republicans, including some of Miller's local backers, and prepared the memorandum.

As to the questionnaire sent to Willkie, Queney said that he had been credited to Queney, the latter said it was the composite work of a group in which he sat with State Chairman Dalton, former Chairman Ferguson, National Committee Chairman Mattingly and Herman Lawlor of Kansas City.

"I don't want to engage in a public controversy with Mr. Willkie," Queney said. "I hope he comes out and makes his position clear. I think it will help him."

Willkie to Pick Own Topic. Willkie, at his New York office, told a Post-Dispatch reporter by telephone today he would "say what I choose to say" in his speech. "Particularly," he added, "as I am paying for the hall. He did not say whether he would answer, point by point, the questions put in the Miller-Queney communication."

He seemed greatly amused by the identical character of the speech and the Queney communication, which he first read on returning to his New York office from a western tour. He commented on a phrase used in his letter to Queney, "strong condemnation by fraternal association," and said it might apply to Queney-Miller question of authorship. In his letter, Willkie applied that phrase to his critics' attempt to saddle him with the economic views of his fellow-directors of Freedom House, New York.

A Tip to "Ed." "Ed," he wrote to Queney, "let me give you a tip. If you want to pursue this administration policy of attacking discrediting opponents, by their corporate or group associations, had been used by the Roosevelt administration. Lee Meriwether, president of the Jeffersonians, Democratic group which supported Willkie against the third-term candidacy of President Roosevelt in 1940, wrote to Willkie last week, expressing the hope that Willkie would answer publicly the nine questions in the

SERIES TICKETS, $1059 CHECK-UP ON BOMBER TAKEN IN HOTEL THEFTS LOW OVER BALL PARK

Stolen From Rooms of Guests at 3 Hostelties Over
Week End.

A number of world series tickets and cash totaling $1059 were stolen from sleeping guests who apparently did not lock the doors of their rooms in three hotels, police reported today.

At the Jefferson Hotel Charles Steigewald of Chicago reported $65 was taken from his trousers pocket Saturday night, and William Taylor of Le Sueur, Minn., said $75 was taken from his room. Albert Dervin of Minneapolis lost $148 and Charles Scherb of Chicago was robbed of $32.

Ned Nordness of 7336 Burrwood avenue, Lucas and Hunt Village, an Associated Press writer, who was occupying a Jefferson Hotel room with Norbert Garrett of Mission, Kan., also an Associated Press writer, told police he was awakened during the night by a man in the room. The man said he was the house detective and had found the door open. He left. Yesterday morning Garrett found his world series tickets missing. They later were discovered with his wallet on another floor.

Lawrence Flannery of Longview, Tex., also a guest at the Jefferson, said he took a set of box-seat tickets from a desk in his room. Albert Fuchs of Indianapolis, who is staying at the Melbourne Hotel, Lindell and Grand boulevards, told police a thief took $90 and his A and C gasoline ration coupons from his room.

Seven guests at the Chase Hotel, Lindell boulevard and Kingshighway, also were robbed by sneak thieves. Roy Hamey, secretary of the Kansas City (Mo.) baseball team, was robbed of $180; Dr. Robert E. Walsh, physician for the New York Yankees, lost $200; Jack Farrell, publicity director of the Yankees, $16; Gordon Cobble, sports writer of the Cleveland (O.) Plain Dealer, $35; Bill Veck, president of the Milwaukee (Wis.) baseball team, $160; Gregory Bramewide, vice-president and general manager of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, $14; Louis Couplin, a permanent guest at the hotel, $11.

GOV. GRISWOLD PAYS OFF BET

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 11 (AP).—A 30-pound hog got a chilly reception from the housekeeper at Gov. Green's mansion today, and ended up in a pen at the State Fairgrounds to await a ruling from the Governor as to its fate. The pig was in Chicago, and missed the pig's arrival.

Green won the hog from Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska after putting up 30 bushels of soybeans on a bet that Illinois per capita war bond purchases would exceed Nebraska's.

Missouri Republicans' questionnaire. Meriwether said he wrote as "a friend, not a foe," but that "any American, friend or foe, is entitled to know a presidential candidate's views on vital questions of public policy." He asked, also, that the answers should "be specific, and not deal in generalities which will really tell us nothing."

Inquiry as to Antiwar Plan. "For instance," Meriwether wrote, "in your article in Look Magazine you say 'war cannot be prevented by power; we must develop something new and different, and fundamentally American.' Just what 'fundamentally American' way have you taken to prevent war? What new, different and American way do you favor? If it is for America to join a United States of the World, vested with a power great enough to compel America to do its bidding, then please tell us, so we may know where you stand. Or if that plan, proffered and favored by your intimate advisers, is not the plan you have in mind, then tell us that so we may rejoice at the clearing of such doubts regarding your attitude."

"Many, very many, of your 1940 supporters feel uneasy and uncertain when they see you avoiding plain, forthwith statements; when they think they detect in you a willingness to give away with the pen the independence Washington won for us with the sword—which is precisely what would result if we join a World State and vest in a Supreme World Court, which might have a majority of foreign judges, the power to make the United States obey its decisions."

REHEARING DENIED FINDINGS IN GLIDER ON RULING A RED CRASH LIKELY TO CAN BE CITIZEN GO TO GRAND JURY

U. S. Supreme Court Refuses to Reconsider
Case of William Schneiderman.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—The United States Supreme Court today refused to reconsider its June 21 decision that mere membership in the Communist party is not an adequate ground for canceling United States citizenship obtained by an alien.

Solicitor General Charles Fahy sought the rehearing, contending that William Schneiderman, state secretary of the Communist party for California and a native of Russia, was not entitled to citizenship obtained in 1927 because he "was a member of an organization which disbelieved in organized government."

Draft Case Rehearing. The Supreme Court agreed to determine whether a draft registrant was taken legally into the Army when the induction oath was read to him after he had refused to take it.

The case involved Arthur Goodwyn Billings, a former teacher at the University of Texas who described himself as a conscientious objector.

Billings said he notified the Ottawa County (Kansas) draft board on his registration card that he would never serve in the Army. After being classified as I-A, he was denied reclassification as a conscientious objector on the ground that his objection to war was "rational rather than religious."

He said that he intended, when he reported at Fort Leavenworth for the final physical examination, to refuse to be inducted, if he passed, and to submit himself to civil authorities for punishment.

Instead, he said the oath was read to him and then he was locked up for court-martial.

Another Draft Ruling. The Supreme Court declined to pass on a five-year penitentiary sentence given Walter Ford Connolly of Milwaukee for refusing to report for work at a conscientious objectors' camp. He contended that such work would make him "a participant in war machine and an accessory to murder on the battlefield."

The court agreed to pass on a decision which upheld Massachusetts legislation prohibiting a parent or guardian from furnishing literature to a child for sale in any street or public place. The legislation was challenged by a member of Jehovah's Witnesses at Brockton.

The court refused to review a decision holding constitutional a section of the 1934 Securities-Exchange Act making directors, officers and principal stockholders liable to their corporation for profits realized from trading in its securities within a six-month period. The legislation was upheld by the United States Circuit Court at New York and the Justice Department contended it was signed to prevent insiders from profiting through information available only to them.

About 300 review petitions were acted on today. Cases which the court agreed to review will be set for argument within the next few months, after which a written opinion will be delivered.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11 (AP).—The 45-mile pigeon race from Hammond, La., to New Orleans yesterday was won by a wounded carrier pigeon.

Apparently shot by a hunter, the bird won over 302 others, with an average speed of 979.30 yards per minute for the course.

The bird's name—"Bullet Proof."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Federal employment showed the first decrease in several years during July, the United States Civil Service Commission reported today.

The number of civilian Government employees was 3,223,375 on July 31, compared with 3,252,598 at the end of June.

There was a sharp upturn in the number of Federal employees who left the service during the month. In July, seven per cent left the payroll, compared to 5.8 per cent in June.

Roving Gangs Halt Freight Trucks Here, Force Return to Garages

Groups of Men in Autos Stop Drivers Although St. Louis Firms Are Not Involved in Southern Strike.

Roving bands of men were halting freight trucks in St. Louis today and forcing the drivers to carry their cargoes back to the garages, as a paralyzing strike of truck drivers in the Southeast entered its fifth day.

The office of Local 600 of the AFL Teamsters' Union asserted there was no strike here, James Ford, business agent of the local, having termed the strike in the Southeast unauthorized and having directed local drivers, to "keep rolling."

However, some of the drivers who were forced back to their garages today reported that "gangs" of eight, 10 and 15 men, who were covering the city in automobiles, displayed union badges when they halted the trucks.

"If you aren't sick, get sick," one driver was told in being ordered back to his garage.

There were no reports of violence, drivers making no effort to force their way past the intercepting groups. "There's no use getting your head knocked off," observed an employee of the Ward & Mack Transfer Co., 1217 North Twenty-second street, one of 19 drivers idle there.

At the Ben Gutman Truck Service, 1615 North Eleventh street, 105 drivers were reported idle.

The Columbia Terminals Co. reported to police that 82 of its drivers were idle as the result of trucks having been forced back to the garage a few minutes after the start of operations today.

The Supreme Express and Transfer Co., 323 South Fourteenth street, reported that 16 drivers were forced to return to the garage shortly after the trucks had departed.

Southeastern Motor Truck Lines, Inc., 819 South Third street, reported the intercepting gangs were letting shipments with Government bills of lading go through.

Meanwhile, more than 350 trucks of St. Louis carriers remained tied up in Memphis, Louisville and Nashville.

Truck Strike Spreads in South; 4300 Now Idle. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11 (AP).—Described by one union spokesman as "strictly a wildcat strike," a work stoppage by more than 4300 truck drivers in four major cities tightened today, piling up thousands of tons of freight in Southeastern terminals.

Various union and company spokesmen said the strike was a protest against delay by the War Labor Board in acting on a request for higher pay and longer vacations, but business manager P. H. Hall of the Atlanta local of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers, asserted the 1300 members there were "striking against the operators."

Nonunion truck lines reported they were swamped with business over the weekend as a result of the strike in Atlanta, Memphis, Nashville and Birmingham. Roads at Atlanta reported no noticeable increase in diverted freight.

"This is strictly a wildcat strike," Hall said, "but the boys in Atlanta are striking against the operators and not against the WLB. We made the Atlanta operators a proposal last Tuesday that would have raised the weekly wage of the drivers from $30.24 to $39.20 and they turned it down without explanation. When I told the men their proposal had been rejected, they struck."

There was no sign of a break in the tie-up at Memphis where the men voted to return to work if drivers in other cities did likewise.

FATHER OF 7 TO BE RECLASSIFIED I-A; BOARD HELPLESS. Chairman Says Draft Panel Has No Choice Under New Regulations.

Carl I. Hanneke, father of seven children from one to nine years old and operator of a hardware store at 5390 Southwest avenue, has been notified by his draft board No. 13-A, which has jurisdiction in the case, Albrecht, said the board had advised Hanneke of his appeal rights at a session a week ago to night, where he was invited to appear and state his case.

Hanneke, 34 years old, has been married 10 years, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter, and has three brothers in the Army, two in the Navy and one in the Marines. All the brothers are single.

The Hanneke children are Carol, aged 9; Carl Jr., 8; Rita, 7; Norma, 4; Valerie, 3; Celeste, 2; and Barbara, one year. The family lives at 3972 Dover place. Under the present allotment system, Mrs. Hanneke would receive $122 a month.

POST MORTEM IN DEATH OF GIRL, 4, FOUND DEAD IN BED

Jefferson County Coroner
Orders Examination to Determine Whether She Was Injured.

Microscopic examination of the lung tissue of Sandra Louise Donnelly, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Donnelly of Murphy, Mo., was ordered today by Dr. W. E. Gibson Jr., Jefferson County Coroner, to determine whether the child's death yesterday was due to natural causes or injury.

The child had suffered from sleeping sickness for eight months, yet an autopsy showed death was caused by hemorrhages in both lungs and a heart condition. Dr. Gibson sent the lungs to a laboratory in St. Louis for examination. He expects a report on the microscopic study tomorrow, at which Sheriff Amos Lee of Jefferson County, will report on his investigation of the case. A Coroner's jury, which viewed the body Sunday, will be reconvened to complete its inquest.

The child was found dead yesterday in bed by her parents. Donnelly asked the Louis H. Bopp, Inc., undertaking establishment in Kirkwood to handle funeral arrangements. When he was unable to obtain a death certificate, however, Dr. Gibson ordered the body sent to House Springs where he performed the autopsy, which resulted in his announcement that he was not satisfied with the explanation of the child's death. He declined to make a further explanation.

Having received no order to hold the child's body for further medical examination, R. C. Mueller, who is in charge of the Bopp establishment, and the child's parents have made plans for a funeral service tomorrow at 8 a. m. at the Bopp establishment at Fenton, Mo.

MAN HIT BY AUTO, STREET CAR

Matt H. Pope of Vandalla, Ill., who was honorably discharged from the Army last Friday at Camp Claiborne, La., was injured seriously Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile and hurled against an oncoming street car at Nebraska avenue and South Broadway.

Sterling T. Stoops, 2934 Meramec avenue, driver of the automobile, said he was blinded by lights of other automobiles and did not see Pope standing in the safety zone. Pope was taken to the post hospital at Jefferson Barracks where physicians said he suffered severe head injuries.

U.S. Pays for Finding Canadian Oil, Neglects Own, Says Congressman

Poulson (Rep.), California, Asserts Fort Norman Wells Give Inadequate Supply While Alaskan Field Lies Idle.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Representative Poulson (Rep.), California, said today the Army-Navy Petroleum Board had spent 100 million dollars for development of Imperial Oil Co. wells at Fort Norman, Canada, while a 25,000 square mile naval petroleum reserve north of Nome, Alaska, remained unexploited. He urged an investigation.

Poulson also told the House in a speech that it should investigate corporate connections of the oil company, which he described as a private enterprise.

Production of the Canadian wells, Poulson said, did not exceed 3000 barrels daily. A 500-mile pipe line, he added, had been built over "extremely mountainous terrain" to reach them, whereas a pipe line to the Alaskan reserve could be readily laid.

Declaring he was addressing his questions to Brig. Gen. Walter P. Poulson, said: "Why has the board asked for and received appropriations running in excess of 100 million dollars for... prospecting in the most remote and inaccessible part of Northern Canada not only in behalf of Canada, but in behalf of private enterprise known as the Imperial Oil Co.?"

Such activities, he said, had been carried on with the provision that in the event oil was discovered the United States would pay for it at regular market prices and that title and interest to the wells would be retained by the Canadian Government and the company.

Wildcatting With U. S. Money. This wildcatting with American money for the benefit of our Allies would not be so questionable," Poulson continued, "were it not for the fact that the prospecting of the area suggested has been restricted to an established, but to date limited, productive portion of a comparatively remote oil area lying wholly outside of American territory, while the economically attractive United States naval reserve within 400 miles of the industrial center of Alaska, Fairbanks, northern terminal of the military highway, remains untested."

The wells at Fort Norman, Poulson said, had proved to be an "inadequate source" of oil for prevailing needs of war operations in the Northern theater.

The Alaskan reserve, he declared, was "favorable for present military necessity," adding geologists believed there was a possibility of obtaining more oil from it than from the wells now operated in the Fort Norman area.

resent every shade of thought from conservative Monarchism to Communism. It is clear at the same time that advanced political ideas of the last 20 years have deeply influenced thought in this country and that the tendency will definitely be toward the left, stopping, perhaps, at what might be described best as social democracy.

Parties' Characteristics.
In so far as they have been formulated, the characteristics of six parties are as follows:

1. The party known as Azione. Basically the most important of the six parties. Azione stems back to the tradition of the Mazzini and Risorgimento, is the dominant Republican and middle-class intellectual. It finds its immediate background in "Giustizia e Libertà," the most important of underground parties under Fascism. It favors socialization of basic industries and one wing also favors socialization of agriculture. The party is still poorly organized and has such a multiplicity of ideas and brilliant independently minded potential leaders that agreement on one platform is difficult.

2. The Liberal party. Highly intellectual and seeming to lack a clear-cut program to deal with the actual situation, its leaders, like those of the Azione, are largely trapped in German territory and cannot be mentioned for the time being.

3. The Socialist party. This is an amalgamation of the old Italian Socialist party of Matteotti and of the "Proletarian Union" or Mup. Most of the great leaders of Italian Socialism are dead, martyrs to Fascism. Its program is socialization by evolution, in other words, social democracy.

4. The Democratic Christian party. This is the outgrowth of Don Sturzo's old "Popular Party" which was the clerical party of Italy. This party has managed to remain well organized, due to its connection with the Church and consequent protection.

5. Democrazia del Lavoro, a sort of personal vehicle for Bonomi, 70-year-old former Premier of Italy, who acted as head of the official opposition during the Badoglio government's 43 days in Rome. In political color this party lies between Liberal and Socialist.

6. The Communist party. It has announced its willingness to adopt liberal methods in achieving its aims and fully supports the government. It has a large membership in industrial cities of Northern Italy and undoubtedly is well organized.

Miniature Parley Daily.
Although the official opposition—an organization of all six parties, which functioned in an advisory capacity under the Badoglio government in Rome—has been broken up by the Germans, a miniature group of the same type now meets daily in Naples under the chairmanship of Prof. Arancio Ruiz. Known as the Committee of National Liberation, this group advises Leopoldo Piccardi, representative of the Badoglio government in Naples, and endeavors to represent the interests of the people as expressed through the various political parties.

Piccardi was educated in the law at the University of Turin and was a professional magistrate and later counselor of state under Fascism. He is politically clean and appears to have an intelligent grasp of the situation and its problems. 'NOISE BOMB' IS EXPLODED IN EAST SIDE HANDBOOK SHOP
East St. Louis' "gamblers' war," which resulted in the bombing of Vic Doyle's casino at 319A Missouri avenue with trifling damage three times within recent weeks, and led to the temporary closing of all handbooks and card games in the city, was renewed last night when a "noise bomb" exploded in the rear of a handbook shop at 353 Broadway, one of the largest on the East Side.

The establishment, operated by Adam C. (Mulepole) Fritz, was empty when the bomb went off about 8:10 p. m., and damage was negligible. A Post-Dispatch reporter, making a tour of the premises in the company of three "guards," found one basement window shattered and the rail of a rear stairway damaged. The concussion, however, attracted a crowd of about 200 persons.

Lt. George Dowling, in charge of the East St. Louis Police Department since the recent resignation of Chief Sam Stautz, said the police had no information as to who had thrown the bomb or why it was thrown. Ray Nash, manager of the handbook shop for Fritz, also said he knew nothing.

SUBSIDY PLAN OPPOSED BY RETAIL GROCERS

National Association Advocates Increased Prices as Preferable to Higher Taxes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP).—The National Association of Retail Grocers, expressing opposition to Government subsidies, contended yesterday "America must pay as it eats, instead of leaving today's grocery bills for tomorrow's citizens to pay."

Mrs. E. M. Kiefer, secretary-manager, presented the association's stand in telegrams to the chairmen of the House and Senate committees on banking and currency.

"America's food industry, including farmers, processors and retailers, is unalterably opposed to plans for billion dollar Government subsidy of food production," she said. "Subsidy means only tremendous extension of Government control, pyramiding administration costs and an insupportable tax burden not only for men now fighting abroad but for generations of the future."

"We believe that a few cents more added to the price of today's food will not only mean increased production but will be the least costly way to the taxpayers of solving the chaotic food situation. . . . We believe that subsidies will ultimately mean curtailed production of food and credit inflation."

"To increase production and stop inflation we suggest first, establishment of basic prices at processor levels in such relationship as will encourage production and distribution; second, setting maximum ceilings at levels which will allow efficient distributors to remain in business; third, simplification of price control and of rationing to cover essential foods only; fourth, declaration of essentiality for the food industry; fifth, simplification of regulations and orders so that compliance is possible for everyone."

Mrs. Kiefer contended the proposed program would curb inflation, increase production and "eliminate black markets and other evils existing under the present programs and the proposed subsidy plan."

at the time expected for the units to be attacking.

Well Guarded Base. "To get some idea of the magnitude of the difficulties of this remarkable achievement, it must be remembered that Alten Fjord in which the Tirpitz lay was 1000 miles from the nearest British base."

"Midget submarines were set to the task of penetrating the highly defended base where the enemy ships thought themselves safe. They had to pass through mine fields guarding the approaches to the anchorage and after negotiating the difficult fjords always vigilantly patrolled by the enemy, they had to carry out the attack in strongly protected and confined waters where the ships were moored. Finally, to regain their base, the same obstacles had to be overcome."

ers and fighters on eight airfields on the islands of Crete and Rhodes and the Greek mainland, announced yesterday.

At Athens yesterday the Fortresses encountered 20 to 30 enemy fighters and shot down four. Large fires broke out in the hangars, a fuel dump exploded and hits were observed among parked planes, as a result of the 23-minute attack. At Araxos, the heavy bombers surprised the Germans and bombed their barracks and an airfield near the main runway without opposition.

16 Nazi Planes Downed.
Sixteen enemy planes were knocked down in a series of raids on Crete, Rhodes and Greece, announced yesterday. Fifteen of these were dive bombers wiped out over the Strait of Scarpanto near Rhodes.

The scale of these attacks suggested that a good part of the main body of the Northwest African Air Force may have moved to captured fields in Southern Italy. Fighters and medium bombers already have been disclosed as in operation from these bases.

American Fortresses struck the Eleusis airfield near Athens, the Sedes field near Salonika, the Argos field in the Peloponnese, and teamed up with United States Mitchell for a two-fronted punch at Larissa airfield, 130 miles northwest of Athens. United States Liberator attacked Kastell and Heraklion fields in Crete and Maritza and Calato fields on Rhodes.

Operations by Yugoslavs.
A communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio said units of the Second Croat Corps had occupied the Slavonian town of Cacen on the Zagreb-Vinkovci railway after hard fighting in which two armored railway trains were derailed.

It also reported the occupation of Bijeljina, about 75 miles south of Vinkovci and an equal distance west of Belgrade. In addition Partisan forces were said to have captured the town of Kamnica, near Brezica in Slovenia.

Strong Partisan offensive operations were reported directed against the Ogulin-Karlovac-Zagreb railway and the communique said that German forces previously reported encircled at Ogulin were battling desperately.

In Slovenia the main fighting centered around the Ljubljana-Trieste and Gorizia-Fiume railways. In the battle raging around Susak, adjacent to the Italian port of Fiume, the Germans were reported forced to withdraw at several points.

A Yugoslav communique yesterday said German forces were being pressed back into both Italian Trieste and Fiume.

The Partisans said they held an important height commanding Fiume, at the northern end of the Adriatic, but Berlin disputed this, asserting that Nazi troops were mopping up the Istrian Peninsula (which includes both Fiume and Trieste) and had killed 4000 Yugoslavs and captured 6850 others.

Summary of Partisan Gains.
The Partisans, summarizing their gains in the campaign for liberation reported the entire province of Sandjak in Bosnia was in their hands as well as Eastern Bosnia. By far the greater part of Montenegro, the greater part of Dalmatia and the Dalmatian Islands in the Adriatic, the coastal areas of Croatia and areas of western Croatia from Susak northeast along the Susak-Ogulin-Karlovac railway as well as districts in northeastern Croatia east of Zagreb also are under Partisan control, the Free Yugoslav radio said. In addition the Partisans claim to hold portions of Herzegovina.

The gains, the Yugoslavs said, add up to hundreds of square miles of territory cleared of Nazi invaders.

Colonel's Trip to Dalmatia.
While Tito's Partisans were waging a bitter war against the Germans the army of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, Yugoslav minister of war, apparently was comparatively inactive. However, a Cairo dispatch from Lynn Heinzerling of the Associated Press quoted a Colonel in Mihailovic's army as saying that the War Minister can put between 150,000 and 180,000 armed troops in the field and with aid from the Allies could increase the total to 300,000.

The Colonel, whose name was not disclosed, arrived in Cairo from Brindisi, Italy, where he landed after a trip from Dalmatia to seek British help after the Italian surrender.

The Colonel related that after his arrival in Dalmatia, he found that the Italians planned to hold a bridgehead to receive Allied supplies and reinforcements. However, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had visited the district three days before and the Italians, hearing that the Germans were coming, pulled out southward during the night.

common enemy is driven from China's soil.

"But China's resistance does not depend alone on guns and planes and on attacks on land, on the sea and from the air. It is based as much in the spirit of her people and her faith in her Allies. We owe it to the Chinese to strengthen that faith. One step in this direction is to wipe from the statute books those anachronisms in our law which forbid the immigration of Chinese people into this country and which bar Chinese residents from American citizenship.

"Nations, like individuals, make mistakes. We must be big enough to acknowledge our mistakes of the past and to correct them.

"By the repeal of the Chinese exclusion laws, we can correct a historic mistake and silence the distorted Japanese propaganda. The enactment of legislation now pending before Congress would put Chinese immigrants on a parity with those from other countries. The Chinese quota would, therefore, be only about 100 immigrants a year. There can be no reasonable apprehension that any such number of immigrants will cause unemployment or provide competition in search for jobs.

"The extension of the privileges of citizenship to the relatively few Chinese residents in our country would operate as another meaningful display of friendship. It would be additional proof that we regard China not only as a partner in waging war but that we shall regard her as a partner in days of peace. While it would give the Chinese a preferred status over certain other Oriental people, their great contribution to the cause of decency and freedom entitles them to such preference.

"I feel confident that the Congress is in full agreement that these measures—long overdue—should be taken to correct an injustice to our friends. Action by the Congress now will be an earnest of our purpose to apply the policy of the good neighbor to our relations with other peoples."

GIRAUD UNHURT IN UPSET OF HIS AUTO IN ALGERIA

ALGIERS, Oct. 11 (AP).—Gen. Henri Giraud, French commander in chief, narrowly escaped injury or death last week while on tour of French units in eastern Algeria. His speeding automobile turned over with the general and three companions inside, it was disclosed today.

The accident occurred near Relizane on Oct. 6 when the car was speeding 70 to 80 miles an hour over bad roads in the rain.

Giraud's naval aide, Lt. Viret, was at the wheel when an obstacle in the road forced him to throw on the brakes. None of the occupants was injured.

NEW BRITISH GUN KNOCKS TURRET OFF TANK AT 1500 YARDS

17-Pounder Called 'Complete Answer' to 60-Ton Mark VI Tiger.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Britain's new "secret" tank-busting gun was disclosed last night to be a 17-pounder capable of blowing the turret from a German tank at 1500 yards.

An official statement said "it is the complete answer to 'the Tiger,' the German 60-ton Mark VI tank.

British experts developed this weapon to counter the Germans' heavy armor and big guns. Its first battle test was in Africa, and on that occasion the third shot blew the turret off a tank at about 1500 yards," the statement said. Other reports spoke of the gun's "astounding accuracy."

The gun measures slightly more than 24 feet from the muzzle to the end of the trail and fires fixed ammunition—shell and cartridge fitted together as with rifle ammunition. It has semi-automatic breech action, facilitating a high rate of fire.

SOLARITE... CARBONITE

... Were Popular Before the Smoke Law

Even before high volatile coal became illegal fuel for St. Louis furnaces and water heaters, Solarite and Carbonite had developed a following in competition with the smoking fuel that sold for much less per ton. This was because fuel buyers realized that more per ton didn't mean more per year, and the increased efficiency of Solarite and Carbonite were recognized. If you haven't tried one of these fuels, perhaps you are missing something.

PORTUGAL HOLDS BIG-SCALE, REALISTIC DEFENSE EXERCISES

LISBON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Civil defense exercises of such size and realism were held in Portugal over the week end that Lisbon newspapers wrote articles to calm the populace, while in Madrid rumors were circulated that the Portuguese soon would go to war at the side of the Allies.

While it was stressed here that Portugal had not changed its policy of neutrality, the populace was warned that the defense exercises were a serious business. The object of military preparations, it was said, was the defense of the country's honor and integrity.

Lisbon itself looked somewhat like a capital at war. Windows were taped and air raid wardens patrolled the roofs. One Madrid dispatch said the elaborate preparations for war included the restricting of communications between Portugal and the Azores to official traffic.

REPORT SAYS 1944 NEWSPRINT CUT OF 52 PCT. IS LIKELY

Publishers Ask Congress to Remove Duty on Paper in Interest of War Economy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—An official estimate that pulp and paper shortages in 1944 may become so acute as to force a 52 per cent reduction in the use of newsprint and wrapping paper from 1943 allocations was made today, and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association appealed for tariff act revisions to help meet the situation.

A special subcommittee for the combined production and resources board and the combined raw materials board submitted a report forecasting such a reduction unless a force of 38,500 additional pulpwood cutters can be found to work in Canadian and United States forests.

The committee said the 23,619,000 cord supply of pulpwood available for 1943 use will drop to 17,599,000 cords next year, on the basis of the present labor supply.

The report stressed there was no shortage of standing timber, or mill facilities for making paper. It coincided with a statement by Linwood I. Noyes, president of the publishers' association, that an amendment to the tariff act of 1930 would permit publishers materially to increase the number of copies of newspapers available to the public in the face of diminishing supplies of newsprint.

His statement was presented to the Boren House committee investigating newsprint by Cranston Williams, A. N. P. A. general manager, along with a memorandum calling on Congress "in the interest of war economy" to amend section 1771 of the act "to permit the importation free of duty of newsprint paper used in the printing and publication of newspapers."

The resources and materials boards' subcommittee report again mentioned the desirability of considering use of war prisoners for pulpwood cutting. It said 18,500 men were needed in United States forests and 20,000 in the Canadian woods.

"The large deficit certain to exist unless requirements are diminished and production increased points to the necessity of further curtailment of use, distributed over the whole field of pulpwood paper products," the report said. "The percentages (of reduction) can be determined only in the light of relative essentiality."

If the total deficit were to be met by uniform percentage curtailments of all printing and wrapping paper in use, United States requirements for these papers would have to be slashed an additional 52 per cent in 1944, the report stated.

HOUSE APPROVES CREDIT FOR ALL ON VICTORY TAX

what he called these advantages of a 10 per cent sales tax:

1. It would produce six billion dollars of much needed revenue.
2. Permit income tax exemptions to be raised instead of lowered, thus simplifying the entire tax structure.
3. Afford a convenient and fair method for all to contribute to war financing while being no substitute for the ability-to-pay program embodied in the income tax laws.
4. Since it tends to restrict consumption, the sales tax "is a device that should be employed when there is an inflationary gap of 30 billion dollars or more between purchasing power and available goods at present prices."

"In my opinion," he said, "the tax program presented to our committee by the Treasury Department violated every one of these fiscal policies."

Knutson (Rep.), Minnesota said he and his Republican colleagues on the Ways and Means Committee "would be very reluctant to replace the victory tax with the sales tax."

"But, if the necessities of the war require it," he told reporters, "we, of course, have no alternative."

Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson has opposed the idea of a sales tax, saying it would increase living costs by 8 per cent and create demand for wage and price increases.

A vigorous protest against the Treasury proposal to increase the Federal tax on travel from 10 to 25 per cent was made to the Ways and Means Committee today by R. V. Fletcher, vice-president of the Association of American Railroads. He testified the rate proposed as "too high" and would fall heavily "on fathers, mothers and wives going to see their loved ones for what may be the last time."

TWO SOLDIERS ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY MACHINE-GUN BULLET

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., Oct. 11 (AP).—Two soldiers were killed by a single machine-gun bullet in routine training operations, post authorities announced yesterday.

The soldiers, Pvt. Edward M. Scott of New York City and Walter L. Sindorf of Akron, O., were loading a machine gun on a truck Saturday when the accident occurred.

The gun had not been cleared properly and still contained one bullet, which was discharged accidentally and pierced the stomach of one soldier and hit the other in the chest.

Russo Profits by Cooper's Failure to Slide and by Fans' Bottle Shower

Yankees Victors in 4th Game

By J. Roy Stockton

Just as the Cardinals bungled things for Max Lanier in the first game and for Alpha Brade in the third, so they did for Lanier once more in the fourth contest of the World Series at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon.

Perhaps this should be a story of the brilliance of Max Russo, for the sore-armed left-hander of July and August, who suddenly did an Ernie White in September and October, did a scintillating job in winning, 2 to 1. But let Russo's brilliance be the story of the Cardinals' blunders, instead of scowling over the prospect of a lesser check from Judge Landis.

Yes, that one run that the Yankees scored against Lanier, the run that forced him, unwilling, out of the game for a pinchhitter might have been avoided. Two were out in the Yankee fourth when Joe Gordon hit to left-center for his two-bagger. Harry Walker made many a catch that was more difficult than this one, as the Redbirds dashed to their pennant. But on this attempt he missed connections, and when he got to his feet, after his three-point landing, his sunglasses were as all awry and so was the ball game. For Bill Dickey promptly singled to left, before anybody could think of walking him, and Gordon raced home.

That run grew bigger and bigger on the scoreboard, as inning followed inning and Manager Southworth's strategy in the seventh, when he chose between Lanier's fine pitching and need for a run, undoubtedly was sound. Two were out in that seventh when Crosetti fumbled Sanders' grounder and Litwiler doubled down the first base line, moving Sanders to third. Marion was walked, filling the bases and undoubtedly the Yankees were not unhappy when it was announced that Frank Demaree would bat for Lanier. One

SHORT WAVES

Crowded transcontinental airlines prevented DORIS HART, girls' national singles tennis champion, from going to Mexico City to play in the PAN AMERICAN tourney. She flew from Miami, where she is attending COLLEGE, to Atlanta, but couldn't get a plane that would take her on after trying for three days, and was forced to return home.

Lt. TED ADAMS, former MIS-SOURI State DORIS HART amateur golf titlist, won the SAN ANTONIO Golf Association first amateur invitational, defeating BURNS R. MAUS 4 and 3 at Willow Springs course. Ted was using borrowed clubs and shoes.

WILLIS HELLS, wealthy oil man who has recently been on a race horse buying campaign, says that ATTENTION will give any horse a battle for the New Orleans handicap championship this winter at FAIRGROUNDS. Hells paid $55,000 early this year for the stallion. Hells is going to LEXINGTON to look over 34 yearlings he recently purchased there to choose those that will be brought to New Orleans for training, along with Attention. The PANAMA bantamweight champion, KID ZEPHINE, was too tough for the Californian, HORACE MANN, in their Canal Zone fight. The bout was stopped in 1:40 of the eighth round because of a cut on Mann's forehead.

He reached the bag with a lot of determination and momentum, too. The determination was fine, but the momentum played out and he was out.

Musial was rounding third and might even have sped home during the excitement, but that made three out, which is all out, and so Musial had to run out to his position in right field and the scoreboard put up another cipher for the Redbirds.

That Man-Power Shortage. There was one more muffed opportunity in the ninth inning. Marty Marion doubled to left with one out, but the Cardinal man-power shortage was so terrific in the right-handed batting department that they had to call on Sam Narrows, .051, which means not that he graduated in 1891 but that he made only one hit in 11 times at bat in 1942. Sam made the second out and Klein made the third and that ended the ball game.

Sad Day for Terry Moore. Terry Moore, the brilliant fielding hero of the 1942 series, probably suffered more than any other individual in the park, as the Redbirds suffered the defeat. Terry, on furlough from the Army Air Corps, sat in the dugout but that Sam Breadon occupies during the season, and the strain of seeing things done that he would so want to be doing, kept him writhing, alternately clenching his fists, flexing his muscles and hiding his eyes, as though he couldn't stand what he was seeing.

Several times he grabbed the rail of the box and seemed about to leap out to do something about it all.

Kurovski played the entire game at third base under a handicap greater than spectators or even his teammates knew.

The previous night he suffered a gall bladder attack and spent the morning in a sleep-induced by sedatives prescribed to relieve severe pain. He was in the club house while the club took batting and fielding practice and it was feared until the last minute that he would not be able to play.

Manager Southworth didn't tell the players about it, figuring they had enough to worry about, but he was ready to send Debs Garms to third base.

Kurovski said after the game that he felt a little weak and shaky. His play in the field was all that could have been desired. In the third inning he took a throw and tagged a runner and held the ball despite the impact of another heavily sliding Yankee. With two out in the third Russo walked, Stainback was safe on Klein's fumble and on Crosetti's single to right, Musial fired the ball home so quickly that Russo didn't try to score. Sanders cut off the throw and pegged to Kurovski who tagged Russo as he slid desperately to return to third. The game was scoreless at the time and the stands cheered George for the play.

American Leaguers Win. SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 11 (AP).—An American League barnstorming team defeated a group of National League players 6-5 in 10 innings yesterday with Dick Siebert of Philadelphia singling home the winning run. Miss Candini of Washington and Curt Davis of Brooklyn hurled over the full route.

Crowd Is Slower Getting Into Park

himself during the morning was P. Mose Brannan of Scottsboro, Ala., stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo., who caught the first ball batted into the stands.

Although today's early lineup for tickets at the bleacher and press gates was slower than yesterday's, the fans were more peppy.

In contrast to yesterday's somewhat restrained crowd, the bleacher sitters today kept the park alive with shouts and yells. Maybe it was because they were not as tired as those who got in for the Sunday game. Yesterday's fans stood in line for many hours, but most of those on hand today did not arrive in line until after 2 a. m. This was not the case entirely, however. A few people were in line all night, notably Mr. and Mrs. R. Nelson of Sparta, Mo., and their sons, Bill, Byron and Bob, who arrived early yesterday, and stood in line seven hours. Then just as Bill was arriving at the ticket window, the place was closed because the bleachers were full.

The Nelsons stayed right where they were. They slept on the sidewalk, and the boys made occasional trips to a nearby restaurant for food. They were right there at the ticket window when it opened this morning at 7:45.

Police estimated this morning's line at about one-fourth, or maybe even less, than the throng present when the ticket offices opened yesterday. There were three to four thousand in line yesterday, but at 2 a. m. today only about 200 were in line, and at 6 a. m. the lines were estimated at only 500.

The crowd kept coming as the morning progressed, however, and by 10 a. m. the bleachers were three-fourths full, while the pavilion was about half filled.

High school pupils appeared to predominate. The first person in one bleacher line was Jerome Joseph, 15 years old, of Wood River, Ill. Back of him were 20 boys and girls from Riverview Gardens.

A group of Normandy High School boys arrived in line last night at 11:30. They went to sleep on coats, old quilts and newspapers. When they awoke this morning they were awakened, they were in fifth place.

The pavilion line was headed by Will Barnes, Negro, of 1704 North Taylor avenue, who took his position at 2 a. m.

Woman Plays Hooky. The line for standing room seats was less than 100 when the tickets went on sale at 9 a. m. The first person in line was a woman, who checked to give her name and explained she had slipped off from work, and the boss thought she was ill. She was accompanied by Mrs. George Miller, 5728 Holly Hills boulevard.

Inside the park, the bleacher fans showered clouds of torn paper on the field, played bridge and shot dice. They expressed loud approval when the 26-piece band of J. Demarini began its serenade at 8:30 a. m. with a selection Demarini described as "The Victory Polka." Demarini announced his intention of playing "Pennsylvania Polka" each time an appearance was made on the field by George Kurovski, Cardinals third baseman, a native of Reading, Pa. Demarini said he had chosen "Paper Doll" for the Cardinal song and "Yankee Doodle" for you know who.

The Yankees, incidentally, took yesterday's game pretty much in stride, judging from reliable reports from their dugout. Only one of them, Pitcher Jim Turner, did much talking it up during the game.

ROSARIO, Argentina, Oct. 11 (AP).—Michael Najdorf, Polish chess player, claimed the world's record for blindfold play today after meeting 80 opponents—two for each board—in a tournament lasting 17 hours and 35 minutes.

Najdorf won 25 matches, lost three and tied one.

Dickey Hits a Home Run For Yanks Off Cooper

Walk had suffered an injury to the index finger on his right hand. Word was sent to the press box from the Cardinal clubhouse that examination disclosed that Walk Cooper had suffered a compound dislocation of his right index finger.

Crosetti finally ended the inning with a short fly to Garms.

Crosetti turned a fancy play to deprive Klein of a hit as Lou led off in the Redbird fifth. Frankie moved to his right, made a back-handed stop of the grounder and his long throw beat the Cardinal to first by a whisker. With this sparkling help, Chandler made it a one-two-three inning, striking out Garms and Musial.

Dickey Comes Through. Most started the Yankees sixth pitching two wide ones to Metheny but found the plate then and won the duel as the batter fled to Musial. Johnson grounded sharply to Marion and was out by 30 feet. Kellner bounced a single to right, far out of reach of Klein, who was playing him on the second base side of his territory. Dickey then hit the first damaging blow of the game, a home run that landed on the roof of the pavilion. Kellner crossing the plate ahead of the veteran Yankee catcher, Etten ended the frame with a liner to Klein.

Serving With U. S. Armed Forces

BILL KEOUGH, soccer center halfback, is in North Africa or moving toward Rome, according to latest word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Keough, 7121 Vermont avenue.

The Carondelet Park athlete entered the Army Feb. 24, 1941, and was sent to Camp Robinson, Ark. Later he was trained at Fort Ord, Cal., and was on duty at Fort Lewis, Bremerton, Wash.; Camp San Luis Obispo, Cal.; Puyallup, Wash., and Boeing Field, Seattle, Wash.

"Bill says in North Africa he misses most ice cream sundaes and milk shakes," reports Mrs. Keough. "He has met many soccer players from other nations, but has played little."

A fractured kneecap, suffered during his training days in California, prevented Keough's entry into the paratroops, a service for which he made application. He says the knee is "as good as ever."

Friends who wish to write Bill should address him as follows: Pvt. Bill Keough, 37052142, 172 Prov. M. P. W. Det. A. P. O.

Reeves Earns Spot Among Greatest Fairmount Riders

Bobby Reeves' feat of scoring a total of 46 firsts in 32 days of the Fairmount Park race meeting that closed Saturday marks him as one of the greatest riders ever seen at the East Side track. Fairmount fans who saw this boy break in as an apprentice, watched him develop through his first year and cheered him on to victory as a full-fledged jockey, believe that if he is not taken into the Army he may go on to challenge the Arcuros, Biermans, the Adamsons and the McCrearys for the national championship next year.

Reeves' total of 46 winners surpasses the previous Fairmount high of 43, a mark established by Willie (Peasuts) McCadden in 1939. Thus, Reeves' name will be remembered by local fans as deserving of a place near the top with other great riders who have dominated race meetings here. Among those were Otto Grohs, Mel Duhan, Bobby Jones, Lee Hardy, Melvin Knight, Earl Dew, H. R. Riley, Lyle Whiting, Tommy Root, all of whom went on to finish on top or near the head of the list nationally.

Some fans were disappointed over the failure of the St. Louis boy, Ronnie Phelps, to finish higher in the Fairmount jockey standings, but it became clearly apparent as the meeting progressed that Phelps is at his best in distance races. Sprints predominated and Ronnie did not get unlimited opportunity to bring into play his nice judgment of pace and his excellent ability as a finisher.

Score Mystery After Movie Stars' Ball Game

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 11 (AP).—Movie comedians and leading men engaged in an exhibition advertised as baseball yesterday, but the score, if any, remains a mystery.

Mischa Auer, first up for the leading men, drove to home plate in a limousine and stepped out in a full dress suit. Auer slammed a hit and an understudy ran as far as third for him, whereupon Auer took over and walked safely home.

Those who really love baseball were home listening to the world series game in St. Louis.

Segura Advances

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11 (AP).—Top-seeded Francisco Segura of Ecuador advanced to the second round of the Pan-American tennis tournament yesterday by defeating Aurelio Zuniga, an 18-year-old Mexican, who copied Segura's famous double-grip style. Segura won, 6-1, 6-1, in a match before 2500 persons at the Club Deportivo Chapultepec.

Packers to Face Redskins in Pro Football Feature

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP).—Three of the four freshman coaches in the National Football League have been having their troubles, and the other one—Dutch Bergman of Washington—expects his next Sunday when his champion Redskins play Green Bay at Milwaukee.

Phil Handler's Chicago Cardinals and Pete Cawthon's Brooklyn Dodgers each have lost three straight games, and Gus Dorais' Detroit Lions have dropped two in a row after winning their first pair. But Bergman was more successful in his only league effort, his Redskins winning their opener yesterday from Brooklyn, 27 to 0.

However, now is when Bergman's woes begin. For his team must face a Green Bay club that has repulsed the Lions and Cardinals and tied the Chicago Bears. The Packers appear exceedingly tough this season.

That will be just one of two Sunday clashes between unbeaten teams—games that may leave each division with a distinct leader. For the Bears, a two-time winner since being deadlocked by the Packers, meet the Phil-Pitt Eagles, victor in two straight, at Chicago's Wrigley Field.

The champion Redskins' first 1943 league appearance was the old story of Slingin' Sammy Baugh once again. Yesterday the Texan threw two touchdown passes to Wilbur Moore, and paved the way with more aerials for the other two. Washington rolled up 245 yards via forwards and its defense kept the Dodgers from the goal line, marking the third straight game in which Brooklyn has failed to score.

Green Bay, meanwhile, made additional use of its newly-realized rushing power to mix in 235 yards on the ground with 204 yards by forward passing to bury the Detroit Lions, 35 to 14.

The Packers scarcely needed the magic of Don Hutson's pass-catching, although Don booted five extra points. Harry Hopp scored one of the two Detroit touchdowns to maintain his league scoring lead with 36 points.

The Bears and the Phil-Pitt combine built up interest in their game next Sunday by scoring substantially in second half spurts and defeating surprisingly strong opponents.

The Eagles toppled the New York Giants Saturday night, 28 to 14, only by rushing across three touchdowns in the final 10 minutes after the Giants had exploded for two scores in the opening five minutes. The Bears clipped their cross-town rivals, the Cardinals, 20 to 0, largely on Sid Luckman's passing, after being shut out in the first half.

McSpaden Beats Byrd for Title In Golf Event

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP).—Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Philadelphia had a new title—and $1000—to talk about today.

McSpaden fashioned a 71 yesterday to post a 36-hole total of 141, three under par, and defeat Sam Byrd, also of Philadelphia, by eight strokes. "Jug" thus won the "United States Golf Championship"—a title bestowed by George S. May, president of Tam O'Shanter, where the playoff was held. Byrd, however, received solace with a $500 prize.

McSpaden, showing the same mastery of the Tam course as he did when he won the All-American open championship and $2000 this summer, entered yesterday's final round against Byrd with a six-stroke lead.

Both pros carded 38's on the first nine, but on the home side McSpaden fired a three-under-par 33 to Byrd's 35. McSpaden birdied No. 10 after chipping 18 inches from the cup, potted a 12-foot putt for a deuce on the 11th and holed a 10-footer for another birdie on the 15th.

May aims to make the playoff an annual affair in which the winners of other championships, such as the U. S. Open, P. G. A. and the Masters, will be invited.

Green Briar Champions

Jack Conry took the men's title and Mrs. C. P. Ernst the women's championship in the fall golf tournament concluded yesterday at the Green Briar Hills Country Club.

CHIANG PROMISES TO MAKE CHINA MORE DEMOCRATIC

Also Pledges Efforts to Regain Land Seized by Japs, on Taking Oath as President.

By SPENCER MOOSA
CHUNGKING, Oct. 11 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek took the oath of President of China on the thirty-second anniversary of the founding of the republic yesterday, and in a speech declared that China's policy was to achieve early establishment of constitutional government and to defeat aggressor nations in co-operation with the United Nations.

"I will observe all laws and respect public opinion in order to set an example of democratic rule in China," Chiang said in a broadcast after taking the oath of office. "Now that our ultimate victory is in sight and a great future for China is dawning, I will strive for the nation's advancement courageously and conscientiously together with my fellow countrymen."

"At a time when China's war of defense is entering a decisive stage, when national reconstruction is beginning in all earnestness, the military and economic machinery is to be strengthened and some administration and foreign relations are to be established. I feel ever more the weightiness of my responsibilities, and I shudder at the thought of the great task that falls on my shoulders."

Taking the oath of office, Chiang pledged to endeavor to recover China's lost territory.

The 58-year-old Generalissimo also promised to "comply with the teachings of Dr. Sun Yat-sen," the father of the Chinese revolution, and to "submit to the sanction of the law in the event of violation of my oath."

Chiang, accompanied by his wife, drove to the National Government building in their 1939 Cadillac, accompanied by a carload of plain-clothes bodyguards. He took the oath of office facing an assembly of about 400 of the highest officials of state and one woman—his wife. There were no foreigners present and none in the gathering wore foreign clothes.

China and U. S. Need Each Other, Wallace Says in Broadcast

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Vice-President Henry Wallace pictured China yesterday as both bulwark and cradle of the concepts for which the Western democracies fight, and asserted "we need the help of China as much as she needs ours."

The war, he said in a broadcast speech, "is a mutual action of the nations of the world who believe in the sovereignty of the people in the affairs of life." He added that China "has been one of the chief inspirers of, and indirectly one of the creators of, Western democracy."

He spoke over the Columbia Broadcasting System network during an intermission in the broadcast of the Philharmonic Symphony program, in honor of the thirty-second anniversary of "Double Ten," the tenth day of the tenth month, on which the Chinese republic was created.

Wallace said there are "amazing parallels in the fundamental concepts and in the thinking and living patterns" of the Chinese and American peoples. The Chinese philosophy, he said, exerted a powerful influence on those whose democratic concepts found fruition in the American Constitution.

The primary parallel, he said, lies in Chinese recognition of the family as "the sacred and abiding unit of civilization." That in itself, he said, leads to a democracy of living, and "Double Ten" marks the anniversary of Chinese recognition that "this democracy can only come into full blossom when it is combined with political democracy."

A second striking parallel, Wallace said, lies in a shared Chinese-American belief "in peace not as a vacuum not as the mere absence of conflict, but as a positive way of living."

IMMEDIATE START ON DEMOBILIZING INDUSTRY URGED

Byrnes to Begin Study at Request of Roosevelt—Munitions Program to Be Cut Down.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—An immediate start on planned demobilization of industry is being urged by some administration advisers. They propose to divert released materials into the most urgent civilian needs even while the war is going on.

The proposal has been made that James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization, designate an agency to take charge.

The agency's first step would be to ask for materials left over when munitions programs are curtailed, as tanks, destroyer escorts and some others already have been. It would then supervise their diversion into civilian use.

Program to Be Pared Down.
One high official has estimated that the 100-billion-dollar munitions program for 1944 will be pared down by six to eight billion dollars by close policing of military procurement, mainly by the Joint Production Survey Committee named by President Roosevelt some days ago. Made up of two

Generals and two Admirals responsible only to the two joint chiefs of staff, the committee is under orders to eliminate waste in war production and limit output to actual needs.

Byrnes will begin a study of industrial demobilization this week, at the request of the President.

These efforts are expected to result in cutbacks such as last week's 20 per cent decrease in the destroyer escort program because planes and other types of naval vessels have become available to fight U-boats, and facilities are urgently needed to build landing boats.

No Great Amount for Civilians.

Officials emphasized, however, that the crucial shortage of manpower will continue to prevent any substantial restoration of consumer goods production. Shortages of essential goods will continue to be met as they arise, but officials declare they are chiefly concerned at present with meeting the needs of transportation, communications, sanitation, and plant repair and maintenance.

Byrnes is said to have been urged to act promptly.

"We do not want a sudden, sickening drop in production when Germany falls and another one when Japan falls," said one official. "If we start now to make a small beginning on civilian production, out of the savings of war production, and gradually accelerate it as our enemies fall, we can make a steady, well-controlled recovery of our economy with a minimum of dislocation."

The Senate Military Affairs Subcommittee on contract termination, created to pursue the same general objective of an orderly return to peacetime economy, announced today it would begin public hearings Thursday. Business men representing both large and small operations are to be the first witnesses.

Chairman Murray (Dem., Montana), hopes his group can shape a program which will provide speedy final settlement of terminated war contracts, quick temporary financing for manufacturers who may need cash in advance of final settlements, uniformity of policy among the various Government agencies, and "statutory guarantees that the rights of smaller manufacturers will be protected."

AMERICAN UNIT GOT BAPTISM OF FIRE AS GUERRILLA BAND DRIVING NAZIS FROM CORSICA

Highly-Trained Strategic Services Group Fought Skillfully Alongside Italian Patriots and French Goumiers—Were Wrongly Identified as Rangers.

By HELEN KIRKPATRICK

The Chicago Daily News—St. Louis Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1943.

CORSICA, Oct. 11.

AMERICANS fought skillful and expert guerrilla warfare alongside Corsican patriots in the action which speeded the Germans on their way through Corsica from Sardinia.

"A Strategic Services operational group," composed entirely of Italian-speaking Americans commanded by Lt. Col. Russell Livermore of New York, and led into action by a Capt. Piteri, reached Corsica in mid-September, fought with patriot Italians and Goumiers (French Moroccans) in mountainous Northern Corsica and were the first to enter the devastated city of Bastia.

The action around Barchetta, where some of the toughest fighting occurred, two Americans were killed and a third was found to be missing. It was there that the hard-pressed Germans threw in tanks, artillery and mortars. Two Americans were killed by mortar fire.

The operational group is a highly trained unit carefully picked for initiative and knowledge of language. Owing to the presence of 80,000 Italians in Corsica and the question as to what they would do, these Americans were sent here. Their relations with Corsican patriots, whose local languages are more Italian than French, were excellent, and they worked in closest conjunction with the large band of Corsicans who have been fighting the Germans and Italians for the last three years.

Equipped by British.

The famous "maquis," or hide-outs in the Corsican mountains, where bandits took refuge in other years, have concealed groups of patriots whose degree of organization varied from region to region. Equipped with Sten guns and other weapons which the British have sent in during the last year, these patriots have made life more unpleasant for Axis troops.

The Americans fell in with the patriots, living in the maquis, went on raids, demolishing roads and blew bridges in front of the Germans. Toward the end of the campaign they advanced as regular infantry, some leading the few Italians who could be persuaded really to fight and others with the Goumiers.

For all of them, it was their first fighting, and it was as stiff as any has been in Italy. Though all the Americans were of Italian origin, none was impressed with the Italian Army's fighting ability. Individually the Italians were all right but too many of their officers are still Fascists. This was one of the things the S. S. O. group came in to learn. On the basis of their findings it would seem that we can expect little real assistance from the Italians so long as their officers remain the same.

The American group's names would be familiar around Italy and Sicily—names such as Catanzaro, Di Martelli, Martini. All these boys have nerve and dash and now are beginning to feel that they are pretty good, which they are.

They are the boys we found after a long night's search—boys who had lived in as rough and wild a country as can be found in Western Europe. Though a small unit, they contributed no small part to the expulsion of the Germans from Corsica. They are the boys whom the French communiques miscalled Rangers.

Bastia a City of Dead.

We entered Bastia, last German stronghold in Corsica, shortly after the first French and Americans fought their way in. It was not a triumphal entry. There were no flags flying, no cheering populace. It was a city of dead.

All the strange contradictions of this war, all the reactions of people long under the Axis heel as well as a foretaste of what occupied Europe will be like, can be found in Corsica. Northern Corsica presented in miniature the panorama of a country from which the Germans have retreated, laying waste as they fled.

An American colonel, two captains and your correspondent drove through the beautiful mountain passes of central Corsica from Ajaccio towards Bastia. At Corte, a colorful village perched on a mountain crag, we stopped for gasoline. The head patriot of the region greeted us and insisted that we eat a dinner of cabbage, soup and Corsican cheese—all the food there was in the village. He refused to accept payment for either food or gas and gave us a password to enable us to get through the patriots' patrols.

It was dark before we reached Ponte Luccia about 40 miles from Bastia. From there on, the Germans had blown up bridges and mined the mountain road. It was there that the Italians had formed a line against the Germans after the latter had driven them from Bastia.

Warned of Mines.

The road was jammed with Italians—tanks, trucks and infantry moving southward for evacuation to Sardinia. Time after time we had to balance the car on a ridge or precipice to let the Italians pass. There must have been at least 20 miles of detours around the blown bridges. Every so often an Italian soldier would appear from the darkness and warn us of German mines ahead. It was 9:30 p. m. when we reached Bastia's outskirts.

The road was filled with French

Goumiers and trucks. The bridge—the only means of getting into the city—was a yawning void. The French said it was impossible to get in. A small mountain trail to the left of the bridge was passable but mined. Eight Frenchmen had been killed an hour before trying to cross it.

We left the car and one captain to guard its contents and with field rations in musette bags, the colonel and other captain and I started over the trail, gingerly feeling our way, looking for trip wires and signs of mines. We found none and reached the first houses half an hour later. As we paused to get our bearings the stuttering of Sten guns broke the silence and we retreated behind a wall. We called the password which the patriot chief in Corte had given us and heard an answering "Passed."

A new moon dimly lit Bastia's old stone houses on the cliff above the sea. Suddenly, ahead, the road vanished into a crater where houses once facing the sea had disappeared in a huge bomb hole. By clinging to the wall we got around into a debris-strewn and deserted street scarcely wider than a small alley. Nowhere were there any signs of life. Flashlights showed most buildings to be empty shells.

Guns Crackle Again.

As we rounded a narrow corner onto the stairs leading down to the port the Sten guns again crackled and we retreated into the street. From one house came the murmur of voices. We entered a stable-like room, where dim light seemed to come from the back. The voices grew louder. "Not alone American," our Italian-speaking captain called and a Corsican voice told us to enter.

We were greeted by three Corsicans with Sten guns which were lowered only when it was evident we were really Americans. We found ourselves in a crude bakery, its rough wooden shelves half filled with newly-baked bread, some of which the bakers insisted we accept though bread is the most precious commodity in Corsica.

The enthusiastic welcome of the Corsicans was almost overwhelming. It was only with difficulty that we turned down an invitation to spend the night in a two-roomed "shop" and persuaded one man to guide us toward the convent where American troops were supposed to be. The Corsicans advised against proceeding as no one was permitted to move about the post after dark and if patriots on the lookout for Germans did not shoot at us, Goumiers would be sure to.

Bartoli, our mustachioed, fierce-looking guide, led us up the narrow stair-like street from the city onto the mountain trail around the city. The bridges leading from our side of the city to the other were all blown and this trail was the only means of reaching the convent.

Finally Gave Up Search. We were challenged about every 500 yards by the Goumiers, some of whom could not understand French and others who were doubtful if we were Americans and not Germans. As a result, it took us nearly three hours to walk about three miles. At the locked, dark convent, there were no signs of Americans or anyone else. Bartoli left us in the hands of a Bastia policeman who didn't know where the Americans were. After an hour's search, we gave up looking for our colleagues.

It was 1 a. m. and the port was lit by a still blazing house. The harbor was silhouetted by the glare from two burning ships. The silence of the deserted city was broken by occasional explosions of time bombs left by the Germans, and pervading the whole area was the sickening stench of unburied dead.

We went to the gendarmerie, installed in a former night club, the Hollywood, its candlelit, garish interior a strange contrast to the desolation around. Upstairs we took over bedrooms evacuated only the previous day by Germans, whose possessions were still strewn about. Between frequent time-bomb explosions and activities of animal life in the mattresses, sleep was a somewhat intermittent affair.

At dawn we resumed our search and finally a 17-year-old French boy guided us to the school where 30 Americans were camped. When we thanked him, he drew himself up, gravely saluted and said, "It's we who thank America for liberating us. It's a debt we can never repay. I hope to join you immediately." And with tears he departed.

No more moving welcome could have been accorded anyone than the tears and words of that French boy in the devastated Corsican city.

Wake Island Under Heavy Sea-Air Attack

Smoke rises from a Japanese gasoline tanker, set afire in the Wake Island channel, and from a bomb hit near storage tanks at right, during an attack on the Pacific base by an American carrier task force and land-based planes last Tuesday and Wednesday. The Navy reported it inflicted heavy damage and that the tanker had blocked the channel to enemy shipping.

Steinbeck Tells Weird Adventure Of Two PT Men Alone in Palermo

Arrived at Fallen City Ahead of Army and Found It Deserted—They Got the 'Willies' and Ran Back to Boat.

By JOHN STEINBECK

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER (By Telephone.)

THE sea off Sicily was running in long, smooth waves without whitecaps and the day was bright and the sea that Mediterranean blue that is unlike any other blue in the world. The PT boat ground its way through, making a great churned wake and taking even what little sea there was over the bow. It's the wettest boat of all, the torpedo boat. The crew, in their rubber clothes, huddled on the deck trying to keep out of the constant spray and on each side of the bridge the machine-guns, at their stations, sat in their turrets behind their guns and the water glistened on their faces. The cartridge cases of the 50-caliber shells were green from contact with the sea water.

Off to the right a body was floating in the sea, rising and falling on the long waves. It was pretty swollen, and the brown lifebelt and collar made it float pretty high in the water.

The Captain was dressed in a bathing suit and he was barefooted. The First had a rubber coat on but his trousers were rolled up, and his feet were bare, too. The two of them looked off across the port torpedo tube at the floating body.

Had to Make Schedule.

"Should we go over and take a look?" the First said. "Not in the shape it's in," the Captain said. "Besides, we have to make our schedule."

The First said: "I think that's the loneliest looking thing in the world. A body floating at sea. I don't know anything that looks so alone."

The Captain let go his hold on the torpedo tube and turned and held onto the rail behind the port gun turret. "Before you came on I had one that gave me the willies," he said. He broke abruptly into his story. "After Palermo fell," he said, "there was a night and a part of a day before the Seventh Army got to the city. I was on patrol with five PT's and we got the flash and we were in the neighborhood anyway, so we came to take a look. You know what Palermo looks like. That great, big, strong mountain right beside the city and the crazy lights that get on it and then the city spilled down there at the base. It looks like Ulysses has just left there. You can really get the sense of Homer from that mountain, from the whole northern coast of Sicily, for that matter. It just stinks of the classics. "Anyway, it was fairly late in the afternoon when we came opposite the city and crept in next to the mole and sneaked through. We were fixed to run if anything shot at us, but nothing did. We went into the harbor and it was really shot to pieces. There were ships sunk all over and twisted cranes and one little Italian destroyer lying over on its side.

Air Force Does a Job.

"The air force really did a job on the waterfront there. Buildings and docks and machinery and boats just blasted into junk. What a junk man's dream that was! What made me think of it was white cat, but that's the only living thing there was.

Cats Lying on Sides.

"You know those little, painted cats the Sicilians have, with scenes from the Bible painted on them? Well, there were some of those lying on their sides and the donkeys that pulled them were lying there dead, too.

"The First and I walked up into the town. Every once in a while I'd get the idea of going into one of the houses and just seeing what they were like, but I couldn't. It was quiet and there wasn't a breath of wind and the doors were open and I just couldn't make myself go into one of those houses.

"We'd walked quite a good distance up into the town, farther than we thought, when it began to get dark. Neither of us had thought to bring a flashlight. Well, when we saw the dark coming, I think we both got panicky without any reason. We started to walk back to the waterfront and we kept going faster and faster and then we finally broke into a run.

"There was something about that town that didn't want us there after dark. The open doors were black already and the deep

61 Jap Planes Destroyed in Wake Attack

13 U. S. Craft Lost—320 Tons of Bombs Dropped—Island Also Shelled.

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 11 (AP).

THE latest American blow at Wake Island inflicted considerable damage on Japanese positions and destroyed more than 61 planes, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported yesterday.

The attack began with an air and sea bombardment by a task force under the command of R. Adm. Alfred E. Montgomery on Tuesday morning of last week. A group of Navy Liberator bombers struck that afternoon. The attack was resumed Wednesday morning by planes of the task force.

More than 30 Japanese planes were destroyed in the air, and "We lost 13 planes in combat," Nimitz announced.

In spite of the enemy's resistance, the Wake defenses, barracks, shops and airfields were scattered in a total of 320 tons of bombs dropped on the island.

This is believed to be the greatest weight of explosives unleashed on the Japanese in a single action in all the Pacific theatres of war thus far.

Casualties among enemy personnel were not mentioned in Nimitz's communique. But Comdr. John T. Hayward of Great Neck, L. I., N. Y., who got a close-up look in a strafing run at 300 feet altitude with a four-engine Liberator, told correspondents in an interview:

"We saw a considerable number of dead Japs scattered around the landscape." (Before enlisting in the Navy, Hayward was assistant batboy for the New York Yankees and still is a loyal Yankee backer. His bombing and strafing attack on the Japanese at Wake came only a few hours after the Yankees had beaten the St. Louis Cardinals 4 to 2 in the World's Series opener.)

The text of the communique, which amplified a previous bare announcement Oct. 6 that an attack on Wake had begun, follows: "Supplementing Pacific Ocean area communique 14, the following information is available concerning our operations against Wake Island.

Senator's Criticism of Lend-Lease Called 'Childish Nonsense' in Britain

Newspaper's Comment—Official Says President Is No Time to Stress Differences in British-American Policy.

By E. C. DANIEL

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).

LAST week's "secret" report of five battle-front-visiting U. S. Senators, some of whom criticized lend-lease dealings, particularly with Britain, and opposed immediate foreign policy commitments, came as something of a shock to the British public and press.

There was little unofficial and no official comment today on the off-the-record report made by Senators Russell (Dem.), Georgia; Chandler (Dem.), Kentucky; Mead (Dem.), New York; Lodge (Rep.), Massachusetts, and Brewster (Rep.), Maine, but the keen interest was signified by the prominent display it received in the war time restricted press.

The only newspaper to comment editorially today was the conservative Daily Telegraph which termed the criticism as relating to Great Britain "childish nonsense."

The British press generally was content to let American commentators themselves reply to the criticisms. The New York Herald Tribune and other newspapers were quoted as condemning the Senators.

Apparently attempting to allay and ship bombardment beginning at dawn Oct. 5 west longitude date was followed late the same afternoon by an attack by a group of Navy Liberator bombers led by Commander John T. Hayward, U. S. N., and on the morning of Oct. 6 by further aircraft bombing by the force commanded by Rear Adm. Alfred E. Montgomery, U. S. N.

"In extended attacks, our planes dropped 320 tons of bombs. An intensive bombardment by ships combined to inflict considerable damage to enemy installations on Wake, Peale and Wilkes islands. "Enemy defenses were so neutralized in the initial bombardment that heavy bombers encountered only weak, ineffective anti-aircraft fire and no air opposition in their low altitude bombing attack in the late afternoon of Oct. 5.

"Our forces destroyed 30 or more enemy planes in the air and 31 on the ground. Many fires were started in plane dispersal areas, shops, barracks and storage areas throughout the three islands. "Two small vessels, one loaded with gasoline, were destroyed. "Damage by enemy action to our ships and personnel was negligible. We lost 13 planes in combat."

The Wake attack is the third in the newly opened Central Pacific offensive employing the Navy's increased aircraft carrier strength.

Seven enemy planes were destroyed Aug. 30 at Marcus Island, northwest of Wake, and 26 more in a two-day raid on the Gilbert Islands in the South Pacific Sept. 17-18.

Thus Japanese plane losses in the three actions total 94, against 20 American.

Wake was attacked once before by a carrier force, on Feb. 24, 1942. The island group also has been subjected to seven raids by Army heavy bombers.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

An Appraisal of Mr. Truman.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE thought expressed by Benjamin F. York, that Senator Truman is presidential timber, is most amusing. I am for the Senator and his committee in their honest efforts to search for the industrial enemies of America. But a man who looks for our enemies in industrial plants and sponsors enemies of America in political camps is just "small stuff."

I refer to his support of the racketeer politicians in Missouri who did their level best to deprive the people of Missouri of the right to have the Governor whom they legally elected.

I wonder what the boys who are giving their lives to protect the American way of life and their parents think of a man who supports the wreckers of the American way on the home front.

We need a man who is consistently and patriotically American. It is time the people shame every person who aspires to public office who is not sincerely American at heart.

GEORGE KINDORF.

Jap Atrocities.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN I read of the atrocities committed by the Japs against our boys, it really makes my blood boil. God pity us poor mothers who have sons in this war and across the seas. I hope we will be able to get the names of these murderers and that the day will soon come when we will be able to execute them for their crimes. We have three boys gone from our home.

Festus, Mo. WINNIE SPEIDEL.

Religion in Soviet Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is pathetic that Mr. Marsh is so ill informed about the Soviet Union. He seems to be worrying over hobgoblins which do not exist.

Mr. Marsh's dislike of our gallant ally, Russia, is founded upon a complete misconception. The Soviet Union now recognizes the Orthodox Church.

Even before this, there was more actual practice of the principles of Christianity in Russia than Mr. Marsh could even imagine. The brotherhood of man has actually been practiced in the Soviet Union for years.

I would suggest that Mr. Marsh read "The Soviet Power" by Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury. The Dean of Canterbury, being a very religious person, can satisfactorily enlighten Mr. Marsh in regard to how Christianlike the Soviet Union is.

G. A. C.

A Criticism of J. P. Courts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I RECENTLY had the unpleasant experience of being forced to use a local Justice of the Peace court. Having heard a little concerning the caliber of these courts, I was not a great deal surprised. However, I never concerned myself very much over local politics, but this experience has awakened me to a condition wherein respectable citizens are not even accorded plain ordinary courtesies.

C. W. S.

Tough Going on the Home Front.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

LAST week, our butcher had a small tin can on his counter which contained nine hard, flat biscuits, two squares about half the size of a package of yeast and a tiny tin of coffee. He assured me that was a soldier's rations for one day.

The butcher said he was tired of hearing people gripe because he didn't have the particular cut of meat they wanted. He said he was going to show that B ration to the next griper and tell him that if a soldier could fight on what was in that tin can, the customer could surely live on the plenty he could buy, even if it wasn't exactly what he wanted.

MRS. HENRY MORELAND.

Mounds, Ill.

Mr. Ploeser's Heckling.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

CONGRESSMAN PLOESER is not deceiving voters by his heckling of our courageous and daring lady of the White House. Ploeser's constituents demand more of him in these trying times than the clownish stunts of a limelight seeker.

OTTO KAEMMERER.

Thinks New Airport Can Wait.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REGARDING your editorial and cartoon, "Air Terminal or Whistle Stop?": Most of us agree that a new and improved airport is needed, but not until after the war. With the present labor shortage and possibilities of a work scarcity for a time after the war, wouldn't it be better to let this job be a sponge for the postwar decline? The aircraft factories aren't going to start making huge transport planes the day after victory, and St. Louis is not going to be reduced to a "whistle stop" as the result of not having an airport right now.

That gigantic plane, "The Coming Air Age" may well be an enemy bomber, unless we fight the war more and try less to build as many airports as Dallas and the state of Texas.

G. S.

Lodge's Dangerous Talk

The five touring Senators have brought back a few constructive ideas about the war, such as the need for a statement of policy and for better news coverage. They also brought back many of the same prejudices with which they started, some of them in aggravated form.

The most unfortunate item in this category is the demand by Senator Lodge (Rep.) of Massachusetts for Allied bases in Siberia. If the Russians will open these bases to our bombers, so they can carry the war directly to Japan, "a million American lives might be saved," Lodge told the Senate. (The five Senators, incidentally, did not visit Russia.)

This sort of loose talk is not going to help our relations with the Soviet Union. Our understanding with Britain is strong enough to withstand the hecklers' attacks, but we have still to reach anything resembling its counterpart with Russia.

If Russia lets the Allies use Siberian bases, this means an immediate war with Japan. It means that the Jap army of a million or so men now poised in Manchuria will at once invade Siberia. Neither America nor Britain is prepared to rush in the help that the Russians will need to fight off such an attack. Reinforcements could come only from the Soviet armies in Europe that have scored such great victories against the Nazis. That might give Hitler just the breathing spell he needs.

If a million American lives are saved by means of the Siberian bases, how many American lives might be lost if the war in Europe begins to go against Russia when she is plunged into a two-front conflict? How many lives might be lost if this enables the Nazis to knock Russia out of the war?

Edgar Snow, writing in the Saturday Evening Post, reaches the conclusion that "Russia will not voluntarily go to war (with Japan) until she has finally disposed of Germany." This writer considers a Russo-Japanese war to be inevitable, but he is convinced Moscow will not launch it blindly and impetuously.

Winston Churchill certainly wants to see the Allies installed in Siberia just as eagerly as Senator Lodge does. Yet this is the Prime Minister's view, as reported by a Post-Dispatch correspondent who asked him about the point last summer:

The Russians have been such a grand ally; have struck such heavy blows, tearing the guts out of Germany; have suffered such grievous losses, that he would not think of suggesting that they declare war on Japan. The Russians must know, however, that Japan has watched events with an opportunist's eye.

Senator Lodge's argument is poorly considered and dangerous.

The Willkie-Queeny Tilt

It appears that Edgar M. Queeny's famous memorandum was ghosted by Congressman Miller's equally famous—and as yet undelivered—speech. No one, however, has disputed the Queeny authorship of those have-you-stopped-beating-your-wife questions which Mr. Willkie refused to answer.

It fell to Mr. Willkie to give Mr. Queeny the most unkindest cut of all when he accused him of adopting the tactics of the Roosevelt administration in attempting to place a man on the spot. We say "the most unkindest cut of all" because it is known on the highest authority that Mr. Queeny does not like the Roosevelt administration or any part of it.

Altogether, the Willkie-Queeny tilt has made capital Indian summer entertainment. It is said that the maples on Mason road are blushing a deeper red this year.

A Strike Against the WLB

The strike of some 3200 Southeastern truck drivers and helpers, tying up millions of pounds of war materials and other freight, is a strike to put pressure on the War Labor Board, which has pending a case for higher wages and longer vacations. Even in peacetime, it would represent an abuse of power and would bring down popular censure upon the head of the union. In wartime, it is an offense of gravity.

We wonder whether workers who can do a thing like this to their country have ever soberly thought out for themselves the meaning of their right to strike. It is a precious right, to be defended with free men's lives. But it is a right of last resort, not merely of convenience. It is a right to be invoked by responsible free men only when all pacific means of settlement have failed.

The peaceful means of settlement have not failed in the case of the truckers and helpers. They are, in fact, in motion at the moment, and the strike has actually arrested them, for it is the fixed policy of WLB not to deal with a labor dispute as long as a state of strike exists.

The trucking strike is not the first one which has been called, in effect, against the WLB. Unions have struck because the board did not act soon enough to suit them, or because the decision of the board displeased them. The impression seems to have gained currency that kicking the WLB around is a legitimate labor-union activity.

In the trucking strike, evidence accumulates that Congress might consider increasing the powers of the War Labor Board to discourage strikes against the board in the future.

What's a Pretty Word for "Defeat"?

If Euphues, father of euphemism—the excessively gentle art of finding nice words for ugly meanings—should be turning over in his fictitious grave these evenings, it may be because first the Germans and now the Japanese have been making him sound, by comparison, a flagrant old spade-caller.

The Nazis, who retreat but never surrender the right to speak of it as "detachment from the enemy despite the most stubborn resistance," have received the most repetitious form of flattery from the Japs. The Tokyo Government, peering through its rose-colored glasses, has reported to the Japanese people the latest developments at Kolombangara. What actually happened was that the rising sons managed to get out with their shirt-tails almost at the horizontal, but only with disastrous loss of life and with large quantities of material left behind in the scurry for the nearest exit. The performance is described by Tokyo as "a successful transfer" of troops from the island "almost without interference."

The Emperor's euphemists had better be thinking up a good one, like "glorious withdrawal from the war to previously prepared positions," to express the meaning which we, in our quaint way, express in the blunt words "unconditional surrender."

To Prove Our Good Faith—

President Roosevelt today called upon Congress to repeal the Chinese exclusion acts immediately as a too long delayed sign of good faith toward our partner in conflict. China's epic resistance in her war—and our war—against Japan "does not depend alone on guns and planes and attacks on land, on the sea and from the air," the President said. "It is based as much on the spirit of her people and her faith in her allies." He was confident, he added, that Congress will "correct an injustice" and admit the Chinese to quota immigration and citizenship. "We must be big enough to acknowledge our mistakes of the past and correct them."

Yesterday Henry Wallace addressed earnest words to the Chinese people on the thirty-second birthday of their Republic, emphasizing the stoutest links in our alliance with China to put down the "totalitarian plot against the world." This war, he said, "is a mutual action of the nations of the world who believe in the sovereignty of the people." It is action toward the sort of peace, "as a positive way of living," that the United States was first and China second to advocate as a nation's path to progress, rejecting the long-accepted European concept of war as an instrument of growth and policy.

The President today, and yesterday Henry Wallace, expressed the honest feelings of all civilized Americans toward a comrade in arms and in traditions. Repeal of the obsolete acts must come from Congress by a heartening majority.

A Challenge to the President

In today's Mirror of Public Opinion, we print a serious indictment of Anglo-American foreign policy by Edgar Ansel Mowrer, distinguished correspondent with many years of experience as a student of European affairs.

Mr. Mowrer charges that, while Soviet Russia is waging effective political warfare, the United States and Britain have no ideology to appeal to the peoples of Europe. The result, as he sees it, is confusion at home as to war aims, constant difficulties with our Russian allies and the probable retreat of democracy in Europe for the benefit of Communism.

Mr. Mowrer is not alone in this point of view. He represents an important and growing school of thought both here and in Britain. What he says is a challenge to President Roosevelt.

As De Gaulle Grows in Stature

If our wartime statecraft is to be based on military expediency—a course which by itself cannot fulfill the pressing demands of political warfare—then we must extend a far more friendly hand to Gen. De Gaulle. However impulsive and stubborn our leaders may think him to be, his stature is such that we can no longer look over his head. The reasons are these, and lay in his logic:

The members of the French Committee of National Liberation are predominantly Gaullist. New unity has been achieved by the appointment of popular Gen. Paul Legentilhomme as head of the Commissariat of National Defense. Giraud is pleased that the man chosen has a military background; De Gaulle is pleased because this is true democratic triumph for civil instead of military control over what of France is free and the rest of France as it is set free. De Gaulle's power, then, has been consolidated by the placing of Army command under the wing of the committee—which he dominates.

The Mediterranean Commission will have its headquarters in Algiers, and the French Committee's influence on it will be strong. De Gaulle is positively in favor of some kind of collective security arrangement with Russia after the war, although he does not consider the committee in a position to make alliances until popular elections can establish a constitutional government in liberated France. Russia, in turn, is sending one of her best diplomats, Vishinsky, and an impressive entourage, to represent her on the commission and to promote friendliness between the two nations. We can scarcely do less than grant the same recognition to De Gaulle without weakening our influence in war-torn as well as postwar Europe.

A strong French Army grows in North Africa. Part of it, and a reborn French Navy—four destroyers, two submarines and a cruiser—went into action to drive the Nazis from Corsica. The might of both swells toward "I Day," and the hour when the Tricolor will be carried home. We have not called friend, but have snubbed, the man who is honored as custodian of French spirit. We will need his friendship in the months to come, must seek it as allies should, and not as merchants reluctantly willing to pay a certain price.

The Not-So-Mighty Ocarina

Anyone would deliberately put a banana peeling under the classic ivory heel of Euterpe, muse of music, who would do what the Government is doing. Sixty thousand ocarinas a month are to be sent to our forces overseas. It is the hardest blow music-lovers have sustained since the heyday of the ukulele back in the '20s.

We look forward to an era when from every front porch of a summer's evening there will issue forth the lachrymose, comatose plaint of an ocarina, the love-song of genus Americanus; when every stag party will have its ocarinaist warbling his ineffectually futile flutings on the subject of Gertie from Biserte.

Well, if it will give one American soldier one hour of pleasure, lift one heart heavy for home, we are for the ocarina. It is no lyre, no Aeolian harp, this goose-pated, sweet-potato-shaped bauble of bedlam, its coldly factual song no music of the spheres. But come on, come on, thou paltry pipings!

With rifts with Tokyo reported over Japanese treatment of Portuguese colonies, Lisbon's foreign policy hardly could be called Timor-ous.

"DEMOCRACY, WHY DON'T YOU SPEAK TO ME?"

No Allied Crusade for Democracy

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Russia is waging political warfare, the Allies are not, writer charges; our policy has been one of "expediency" and collaboration with "benign" Fascists, while Soviet takes rigid anti-Fascist stand; Allies may push disgusted peoples of Europe into Communism.

Edgar Ansel Mowrer in the New York Evening Post.

NEXT to the second-front question, perhaps the greatest obstacle to a real understanding between Washington and London on one side and Moscow on the other may turn out to be the lack of a clear "ideology" on the part of the democracies.

Not that the Soviet record in this respect is entirely clean. The signature in August, 1939, of the non-aggression pact with Germany will always remain a pretty cynical piece of business. But since the day Hitler attacked them, the Russians have created a well-defined impression of consistent anti-Fascism. Their policy of encouraging a coming "democratic" Germany in possession of the Wehrmacht can be defended if you insist that the enemy is Nazi-Fascism and overlook the fact that in the Fatherland the Nazi system is only a new expression of the chronic belligerence of the German people.

Even if we deplore, as many do, Russia's stubborn independence of action, we must admit that in the maintenance of the puppet Polish Committee in Moscow, the planting of a Russian Fascist and disguised Polish Communist in occupied Poland, the backing of the "Partisans" against Mihailovich in Yugoslavia, the alleged return of the Italian Communist ex-Deputy Ercoli to Italy, there is an inner coherence.

"Expediency" Is the Rule.

The Anglo-American, Roosevelt-Churchill line, on the other hand, has nothing to guide it but "expediency." Saving lives where possible is an admirable "way" of fighting, but it can never be the "aim" of a war. Yet either Americans will have to understand that Fascism and para-Fascist Japanese militarism started this war and will, if not destroyed, start the next, or they must obviously still ignore what the war is about—as many have reported that they are doing.

There is evidence that the President does understand this. We may, by a stretch of the imagination, deduce this from the passage in his recent report to the Congress on the war status: "We shall not be able to claim that we have gained total victory in this war if any vestige of Fascism in any of its malignant forms is permitted to survive anywhere in the world." There you have it—have you?

But before we begin to shout "Excelsior" and gibe at the American dullards who would bid us banish all "ideology" from discussion about the war, let's wait a minute. The catch in the President's otherwise impeccable statement lies in the word "malignant." For that would imply that Fascism, like tumor, can be of two types, "malignant" and "benign." Hitler's and Mussolini's Fascism is "malignant." Darlan's, Badoglio's, Franco's and Petain's Fascism (when he decides to shift back to our side) is "benign."

Character of Fascism.

Sez the President—by inference. But it ain't necessarily so. In fact, quite the opposite is so. To imagine anything else is to ignore the nature and essence of Fascism.

These do not lie, please note, in the evil character of certain human beings, or in the amount of state interference with private initiative, or in persecutions, but in the despotic denial of self-government.

Since, to true Americans, all despotism is by definition bad, there can be no "benign" Fascism, but only more or less "malignant"

Nazi Mass Murders at Lidice
Inspire an Interesting Novel

"This Was Lidice," by Gustav Holm; Translated by Elizabeth Abbott. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

POSSIBLY the mystery of the assassination of the heinous hangman, Reinhard Heydrich, may be solved once the embers of war have cooled to ashes. Until such time, imaginative minds will continue to speculate on the affair and the bestial Nazi butchery which followed as retribution.

Most interesting speculations to date are those advanced in the film, "Hangmen Also Die," wherein the assassin is one of a group of Czech patriots who brilliantly pin the justifiable murder on another Nazi swine; and in Gustav Holm's book.

This novel is a combination of the record and a fine series of inductions spun about the facts. It treats with the simple, freedom-loving people of Lidice whose faith in their friends is shattered at Munich by the man with the umbrella. It concerns their reactions to those notorious events of 1938-42 which saw them sold down the river, forced into virtual slavery and made the innocent victims of the worst plague in history.

Lidice was a peaceful village when Hitler marched into Vienna; its men were murdered, its women placed in concentration camps, its children sent to institutions and its buildings razed within a month after the Heydrich assassination. The Nazis rationalized the slaughter by charging the villagers with having given shelter to the assassins. Assuming that the assassins were harbored in Lidice, Holm spins his tale to such a finale.

Pavel Karoushek, the kindly, scholarly, philosophical schoolmaster, experiences a psychological metamorphosis from a patient dreamer into a provocative pamphleteer. When the Gestapo eliminates him, his fiancée sets out to seek revenge by assassinating the hangman. Actually, she fails in her mission, but inspires two young men to execute her plan, which she facilitates by withdrawing the attention of a Nazi lookout at the propitious moment. When the youths flee, they come to Lidice to be protected by the girl. Lidice pays with annihilation.

The writing is calm, sometimes too calm for one's appetite. Holm's characters do not always ring true to life. One is inclined to wonder whether men actually are martyrs. It is a little bewildering to see them experience such terror with so conspicuous a lack of fear.

In places the writing is naive, and sometimes it borders on plain absurdity. The book is far more delightful at the beginning, where the writing is fresh and the situations plausible. As it progresses, it becomes tedious and pedestrian. Had the story developed as it opened, Holm's novel would provide a well-invested two-hour interval.

A Moscow Correspondent's Book.

MUCH of what James E. Brown, INE correspondent, tells of the Soviet Union at war, in "Russia Fights" (Scrivener's), has been told elsewhere. His two best chapters are on the Churchill and Willkie visits to Moscow.

The Prime Minister's call was scarcely a diplomatic success, Brown writes, and he shocked the protocol-conscious Russians by turning up at a formal Kremlin dinner in his celebrated zipper overalls. Willkie was discounted in advance by the correspondents as a "visiting fireman," political junkie and publicity seeker. In the end, they were convinced of his sincerity, eagerness to learn and keenness for better Soviet-American relations. Russians from Stalin down were pleased with Willkie. Brown says, and adds that his visit to Moscow was an opportune good-will move.

ANOTHER CITADEL FALLS.

From the Columbia (Mo.) Daily Tribune.

THE Army's post exchange—that one-time sanctuary of chewing tobacco, razor blades and saddle soap—has gone the way of the smoking room, the barber shop and the cocktail bar. No longer is it sacred to the clumping brogans of the doughboy. The Wacs have seen to that.

If your memories of the post exchange date back to the days of 1917 and 1918, you're in for a shock when you read what the Quartermaster has prescribed as essential to the Army's American way of life in 1943. The saddle soap's still there—and the chewing tobacco, too. But along with them are such intriguing items as bobby pins, hair nets, nail polish, lipstick, rouge, powder puffs, face cream and deodorants. Yes, pal, it's a different Army in 1943.

TAXES AND DANGEROUS MONEY.

WHAT is lacking in the Treasury tax program is a convincing and intelligible explanation of the problem which it is designed to deal with. An explanation which the country and Congress can understand is at this stage more important than a discussion of the rates and specific proposals. In fact, the program cannot be supported effectively or criticized constructively until there is a general understanding and agreement on what we are trying to do and why.

Mr. Morgenthau's failure to explain sufficiently is evident in his own figures. He is primarily concerned, of course, with the fact that the money income of our people is today enormously greater than the civilian goods available for sale at the present level of prices. This excess spending money is, as he says, "dangerous money"—dangerous because it cannot buy more goods but, if spent now, can only raise the price of goods. The purpose of the Treasury is to protect this dangerous money from the dangers of this dangerous money.

But Mr. Morgenthau's figures show that even after his new taxes are imposed, there will still be an enormous amount of dangerous money lying around loose. Let us look at his figures. In the fiscal year ending next June 1944, the people will, it is estimated, receive an income of 152 billion dollars, whereas there will be goods and services for sale worth at present prices only 89 billion dollars. So subtracting 89 from 152 the amount of dangerous money is 63 billion dollars.

Of this amount, 21 billion dollars will be drawn off by personal taxes, and war bond sales will have picked up more or less securely, say another 17 billion dollars. Subtracting 21 plus 17 and 63 still leaves us with 25 billion dollars of dangerous money. So the Treasury is asking for another 10 billion dollars. But that still leaves us with 15 billion dollars of dangerous money. That is still an enormous amount of dangerous money. It is an inflationary deficit nearly seven times as large as the net deficit of the Government in the year before Pearl Harbor.

Something Is Missing.

There is something missing in Mr. Morgenthau's explanation. He is telling us that he is out to "combat inflation." But he offers us a program which Congress thinks too severe, and yet the program is statistically compared with the supposedly inflationary deficits of the pre-war New Deal much more inflationary. So the citizen who reads the Treasury statement will ask himself whether this program "does the job" or whether it "does not do the job." Yet the citizen will be still more perplexed when he realizes that though—statistically—we have this enormous inflation, yet, in fact, the country does not suffer the pernicious consequences of inflation in the form of ever-rising prices.

An adequate explanation of why dangerous money is not working dangerously would give us, think, the main clue to the problem of war finances. The explanation is, evidently, that the American people are not spending all the money they are receiving. It is this fact that they are not spending it on which we must fix our attention. For the central problem of war finance is to find ways and means of persuading the people to continue not to spend their excess income until it is once again economically safe for them to spend it.

What are the means by which non-spending is being induced? First, many things cannot be bought at all, and many others only in limited rationed quantities. In other words, we are not spending because we cannot buy the things we should like to spend money on. This leads to saving either in the form of war bonds,

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK REPORTS REIGNION RESURGENT IN RUSSIA

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Back from Moscow, the Archbishop of York told a press conference today there had been a resurgence of religion in Russia.

"The terrible losses and sufferings of the war have brought again into the open what was always latent—the deep religious strain in the Russian national character," he said. "It is hard to pretend that this is universal," he added. "There are large numbers who conscientiously reject all belief in God. The state itself is definitely nonreligious."

Asked why Stalin had permitted election of a patriarch and summoning of the Council of Bishops, the Archbishop replied: "I think the reply is two-fold. Premier Stalin is a wise statesman who recognizes that religion is inherent in a majority of the Russian people. Secondly, the church is no longer a supporter of the old regime. It accepts loyally the present constitution. It has thrown itself heart and soul into the national cause."

'SINS OF CHURCH' CITED BY EPISCOPAL BISHOPS

'Confession' Urged for Post-war Progress—Social Injustices Pointed Out.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11 (AP).—Delegates prepared to close the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church today affirmed the House of Bishops issued a pastoral letter which declared the church must be ready to witness to the postwar world by "confessing now her corporate sins."

The letter, read yesterday before delivery to Episcopal congregations throughout the nation, referred to "concentrations of wealth in the hands of comparatively few people; social injustices; a separatist's policy of isolationism; class distinctions and racial discriminations."

Proposing Christian influences in the postwar period, the letter said "victory in this war will open up an unparalleled opportunity for making actual in the life of mankind that redemption which was made possible by the sacrifice of Christ."

"Redemption would seem to be the most suitable religious term to describe the nature of the work that is called for. The primary purpose of the war is to secure mankind its inalienable rights to freedom. Redemption literally means the price that has to be paid to deliver one who is in bondage. In a very real sense, the effort and the sacrifice made in a war to secure freedom, partake of nature of redemption. Yet terrible as is the suffering and sacrifice of war, they cannot purchase the freedom of mankind."

The pastoral continued with the assertion that "our church must prepare—with all our hearts we believe that the church is sickening herself—to witness to a war-sick world, which has been made worse by confessing now her corporate sins which are grievous and, in part, responsible for the darkness that covers the earth."

"We do not need to prolong the painful category of our social misdoings in order to feel convicted of our corporate faults. The concentration of wealth in the hands of comparatively few people; a separatist's policy of isolationism that beguiled us into imagining that we were not our brother's keeper, though now we have discovered that our neighbors need us, and that we need our neighbors desperately; class distinctions that are anything but brotherly and racial discriminations that are anything but just."

"These are some of the things that have crept into the life of our day. We confess that they are sin, and trusting that he who is faithful and just will forgive us our sins."

Delegates adopted a three-year budget of $8,027,572 with $2,615,382 allocated for 1944, $2,677,132 for 1945 and $2,735,058 for 1946. Funds are earmarked for missionary, educational and social service activities.

'ABIE'S IRISH ROSE' OPENS AT AMERICAN

Vincent Gardner, Louise Snyder and Robert Leonard in Leading Roles.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE, a comedy in three acts, by Anne Nichols, presented in revival at the American Theater last night with the following cast:

Isaac Cohen — Abe Gore
Mrs. Isaac Cohen — Bertha Walden
Rabbi Samuels — James O'Neil
Solomon Levy — Robert Leonard
Abe — Vincent Gardner
Rosemary — Louise Snyder
Patrick Murphy — Arthur Jarrett
Anne Nichols — Hebert Duff
Maid of Honor — Joyce Sirola
Brother Whalen — Joseph E. Sullivan
Maid, Marcella Bangert, Jeanne Hemple, Flower Girls — Beverly Potter, Helen Louise Rowland.

By JACK BALCH
The American Theater last night was filled to capacity with more than 1700 persons and, according to reliable hearsay, a quivering in the air that turned out to be the ghost of William Shakespeare.

The occasion was the presentation of "Abie's Irish Rose," the play by Anne Nichols which has been turning the heads of theatergoers for more than 20 years.

That the play still has the capacity to bewitch and beguile the theatergoers, using absolutely nothing up its sleeves but tricks, is indubitable on the evidence. Nobody asked for his money back. And to balance the two persons seen leaving their seats before the second act was over, three persons were overheard saying rhapsodically that they intended coming back again to see the play, which they described as "simply wonderful."

As to the ghost of William Shakespeare, it refused to talk. Or perhaps it just couldn't. However, the expression on its ectoplasmic countenance was plain enough. The expression was in keeping with the same spirit of frank amazement in which the several thousand performances of the play to date. For, believe it or not, "Abie's Irish Rose" is based on something the Bard of Avon wrote once in one of his own dramatic efforts: to wit, that a rose by any name still smells as sweet.

But how the whole matter has turned out! There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than you dream of in your philosophy, Horatio.

Or words to that general Shakespearean effect.

It seems there was a Jew named Solomon Levy, played by Robert Leonard, and an Irishman named Patrick Murphy, played by Arthur Jarrett. It seems that this Levy had a son named Abie, played by Vincent Gardner, and that Murphy had a daughter named Rosemary, played by Louise Snyder. It seems that Abie and Rosemary, having met and fallen in love over in France during the last shindig, came back to America to get married.

The part of America they came back to was the Bronx, New York, and that's where the play opens, in the home of the Levys, who read funny strips, laugh their heads off, and worry, worry, worry over whether Abie's going to marry a nice Jewish girl or whether he's going to marry a nasty little old Irish girl. So I'll tell you what, honey, says Abie to his sweet little Irish Rose, let's call you Rosie instead of Rosemary, and dub you Murfisky instead of Murphy. Then when the old man loves you like he will love you, we spring the Murphy on him and all ends well that begins well.

Ok, by me, Abie dear, says Rosemary, but shure and what will me dear father say when he finds out. A Murphy, she states, is a strange and weird man. He eats Jews for breakfast, shure, and he's a rough, tough, gruff and bluff hombre. Pardon, spalpeen. Shure, shure, shure. But in the end, gefutelle fish and baked ham have come to a working arrangement and the Jewish and the Irish papas, between an oath and an oath, have come into each other's arms. And Abie and Rosemary, who've been married successfully by a Methodist minister, a priest and a rabbi, have presented the two families with twins—Patrick Joseph and Rebekah Levy. And, after all, what grandfather—Yiddish or the descendant of the Kings of Erin—can resist the compliment of grandchildren?

To say that the play is a stinker, fol de rol in its most phooey stage, blarney, hooey, hokus-pokus and an insult to serious drama is to say what a generation of critics have said before this one. The play is all of this, and the very dickens too.

Subtle as a mule's kick in the belly, realistic as Marie Antoinette's advice to the people to eat cake, and funny as a fat old lady slipping on a banana peel, it wends its mainly dreary way through three acts with an obviousness so obvious you could leave the theater at the end of the first 15 minutes and know exactly how it all came down to the advent of the twins.

And yet, and yet—well, you explain the play's popularity. And, besides, as the aforesaid generation of critics could testify, where "Abie's Irish Rose" is playing is no place for a critic to be.

The cast, so far as acting is concerned, was magnificent. This reviewer, if he were inclined to like anything about the play, would like in particular a woman named Bertha Walden, who played Mrs. Isaac Cohen, a neighbor of the Levys. Goss, loud and snortful after a fashion, Miss Walden's Mrs. Cohen was a vision, if not of loveliness, then at least of magnificence beyond the pale. Out of this world, you might say. The play will continue for two weeks.

SVB'S STATIONERY—FIRST FLOOR

Author of 'Well of Loneliness' Had Been Ill 6 Months With Cancer.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—The death of Miss Radclyffe Hall, 57-year-old novelist and poet, whose book, "The Well of Loneliness," was barred in England as obscene and was the subject of legal dispute in the United States, was announced today. She had been ill for six months with cancer.

Born in Bournemouth, Hampshire, Miss Hall first wrote poetry, switching to novels in 1924, when she wrote "The Unlit Lamp."

"The Well of Loneliness" was written in 1928 and soon ran afoul of the British censorship. The book, theme of which was the attachment between a young girl and an older woman, was seized in New York in 1929 in an action started by the American Society for the Suppression of Vice.

In a court test, the publishers were acquitted of a charge of selling an obscene book. The novel became an American best seller. Miss Hall often affected mannish dress. She was a fellow of the British Zoological Society and a member of the Council of the Society for Psychical Research.

With Miss Hall died her latest work, a manuscript on which she had worked for several months but with which she had expressed dissatisfaction. She requested that it be destroyed.

LESS WHEAT IN ALCOHOL

MAKING EASES GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP).—Mill buying appeared in the wheat pit today, sending prices up for major fractions at one time, but U. S. advance was lost near the close.

The Department of Agriculture stated that the reduction in the use of wheat for alcohol from an earlier estimate of 150,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels will permit a carry-over on July 1, 1944, of about 300,000,000 bushels. Increased use of alcohol for production was the major reason for the decline in the wheat estimate.

Stocks of wheat impounded under Gov-earnings from the sale of wheat are much smaller than last year, and the government is not sure whether it will be able to export the country's surplus wheat. How to Punish Japs

Hold First Legion Convention in Tokyo

By Henry McLemore

KNOWING that it is only a matter of a few days before I take the first and foremost step toward membership in the American Legion, that of going in the Army, I have taken an added interest in the organization. Being the type of man I am, my thoughts turned at once to future American Legion conventions. It has been my privilege to be in various cities while the American Legion was convening. While I could only look on—and look out, too—as an outsider, it was with an admiring eye that I watched the Legionnaires make a city, even one of the size of New York, rock back on its heels and threaten to throw in the towel.

NO CONNOISSEUR of conventions has ever denied that the American Legion convention is the No. 1 shebang of the year. The Elks do a pretty good job of wrecking—I mean, convening—and so do the Shriners, but for all around, stomped down yowling, howling, Bad Place raising, every hat must be doffed to the Legion.

All of this glorious reputation was achieved by the American Legion after World War I. Just think for a minute of what the American Legion is going to be after World War II. Millions and millions of new members will be added to the rolls. Most of them will be exuberant young men who, if they can't think up new and devastating entertainment for themselves, will have the advice of the experienced city-take-aparters of World War I.

BUT THEY ARE not likely to need this helping hand from the veterans of Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, and Hoboken. Remember, this war is a global war and men will come home having picked up tricks on how to celebrate from such far-flung places as New Guinea, Persia, India, Egypt, Russia, Iceland, and Camp Blanding, Florida.

If I were a city father, and had any say in the running of my town, I wouldn't hesitate another day before going on record that my city did not want to be the site of the first American Legion convention after the war, because of the sight it would be afterwards. The chances are that lots of cities are going to claim they were the first to announce that they didn't want the convention, so the sooner the city fathers get to declaring themselves, the safer their cities will be.

OF COURSE, the American Legion will have to hold a convention somewhere, and I believe I have the perfect suggestion.

Hold it in Tokyo. Tokyo will undoubtedly be hardened to bombing by the time this war is over, but being hardened to the devastation of bombing and having an American Legion convention held there, are two different things. Talking about losing face, if the Legion were turned loose with its bag of tricks, the lost-face rate in Tokyo would be 100 per cent. Even the honorable ancestors would roll in their graves as wet phone books came flying out of hotel windows to land smartly on Nipponese noggins, and the Sun Emperor was given a hot foot on the corner of Cherry and Blossom streets.

No matter how the Japs cringed when they saw a formation of bombers roar in over Tokyo, it couldn't strike any more terror in their hearts than to see a flying wedge of Legionnaires, packed to the gills with rice wine, roaring down the sidewalk and defying anyone to stand in their way.

BERLIN ALSO WOULD be a good place to hold a postwar convention. As a matter of fact, it might be a good bit of propaganda to let it be rumored around Germany and Japan that the first one of them to surrender unconditionally would be given a solemn promise that the first Legion convention would be held in the other Axis capital.

NOW that children no longer automatically become American citizens when their parents are naturalized, the 11-year-old daughter of Gerhart Seger, former member of the Reichstag, was up before the immigration and naturalization examiner. . . The child, who has lived most of her 11 years in the U. S., was asked the usual questions: "Have you ever been a member of the German-American Bund?" "Do you favor anarchy?" et cetera.

The child looked a little confused for a moment and then, smiling, said: "Oh, a quiz program!" . . . Whereupon the examiner stamped her papers and replied: "You don't want to become an American—you are one!"

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE A-250: Mary P., aged 28, is a talented teacher of the eighth grade. "A few years ago in psychology class," she reminisced, "I remember you said people never fully understand economics until they have operated a business of their own. You mentioned that most of us are paid by the week for simply doing a routine type of work. We don't have to analyze the market and then try to buy economically, as does the merchant or manufacturer. Nor do we then have the headaches of trying to merchandise our goods or services. Nor do we have the problems of collecting for our sales. Dr. Crane, I should like to teach my eighth graders some practical economics. How can I do so?"

SINCE THE majority of people don't operate a farm or a business, a professional office or a factory, they tend to think in terms of income or gross sales. That is one reason why our governmental officials spend so much time and ingenuity trying to figure out new tax schemes. They keep thinking in terms of incoming revenue. Then when deficits result, they simply hatch out a new tax stunt, failing to realize that one of the best antidotes for deficits is frugality and the spending of money according to "horse sense." You can easily see why people forget the liability side of the ledger. They tend to think only of their pay check on Saturday. They have the same lack of business experience typical of our brain trusters economists.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, however, was not one of these brain trusters economists. He kept meticulous books, even of the expenditures of the Army during the Revolutionary War. Washington and Benjamin Franklin conducted their own businesses. Washington was a farmer. Franklin a printer. They bought and sold. Then they balanced assets against liabilities to see if there was a profit. Boys and girls should all learn to run a miniature business wherein they buy and sell. Book-keeping then becomes an interesting course, for they must utilize it to see if they will obtain a profit. The newsboy who buys his papers and then collects from his customers for the sales thereof, has more practical training in economics than many professors of that subject in American universities, or Washington, D. C.

THE ECONOMIC system has three essential parts, namely, manufacturing, merchandising and credit or collections. Most of us manufacture our minor functions as salaried workers or wage earners. We have no merchandising worries and lack experience as regards credit. The farm boy, however, who buys a pig, then purchases corn to feed the latter until it is a marketable hog, and finally balances his books after the sale, has a triple view of economics. If your child operates a garden, let him take the financial risk of purchasing the seed. Then let him tend the garden, merchandise his vegetables and, finally, balance his books. A man who has thus had first-hand experience with all three phases of the economic system will never run the government in the "red ink."

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

USUALLY we serve lemon wedges or tartar sauce with fish. Why not try India Relish with today's fried perch. And while you are about it, make enough for a number of meals to come. You will like it with beef and most other meats. When you are wishing for a new kind of salad dressing, it will be convenient to reach into the refrigerator for the mayonnaise and the relish to make a tasty mixture. Or a meat loaf will take on new and pleasing flavor if a tablespoon of relish is mixed into it. All in all, this is a versatile condiment, one easy to make and one which keeps well.

India Relish.

Two pounds green tomatoes, two pounds cucumbers (three and one-half cups ground), two cups finely cut cabbage, five teaspoons salt, one cup ground onion (three medium), one cup ground sweet red pepper (three or four), one hot red pepper ground (omit seeds), two cups cider vinegar, one-fourth teaspoon cloves, one-fourth teaspoon mace, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon turmeric, two tablespoons white mustard seed (or less), one and one-fourth cups light brown sugar (packed firmly), one-half teaspoon dill seed.

Choose tomatoes that have just begun to ripen or those that show a red tinge here and there. Select cucumbers five to six inches long and about one and one-half inches in diameter. Wash tomatoes and cucumbers. Remove cores and any blemishes from tomatoes and cut a slice off stem end of cucumbers and discard. Cut vegetables in quarters. Put vegetables through a food chopper, separately, using the coarse knife. Measure tomatoes and cucumbers and put into an enamelware or glass bowl. Stir in three teaspoons of salt, cover and let stand three or four hours. Then turn these vegetables into a colander, and press and squeeze out the liquid using medium pressure. Discard the juice. Put the squeezed-out vegetables into an enamelware or glass saucepan. Have onions and peppers freshly ground and add these and cabbage to the tomatoes and cucumbers. Now add rest of salt, spices, vinegar and sugar. Heat just to boiling point, then simmer ten to fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Pack into hot sterile containers. Seal, cool, then store.

MENUS FOR TUESDAY.

Breakfast. Orange juice, five oranges; prepared cereal, two and one-half cups prepared cereal, top milk; toast, eight slices enriched bread (sugar, butter or margarine); coffee (for adults), three tablespoons coffee; milk (for children) two cups milk.

Luncheon.

Potato soup, crackers, two and one-half cups cubed potatoes, one-fourth cup diced onion, three-fourths teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, one cup water, three cups milk, three-fourths teaspoon chopped parsley, one-fourth pound cracker, egg, whole wheat bread, butter or margarine; celery salad, five hard-cooked eggs, one-fourth cup chopped sour pickle, one-half cup finely diced celery, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-third cup mayonnaise, lettuce; whole wheat bread, eight slices; whole wheat bread, butter or margarine; apple sauce, two pounds tart apples, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth cup water, cinnamon and lemon juice (use one-half for lunch); milk for all, one quart milk.

Dinner. Pan fried perch, one and one-half pound perch cut boned perch into serving pieces, dip into mixture of yellow cornmeal, salt, all-purpose flour, brown quickly in sizzling fat, cover skillet, reduce heat, and cook 10-15 minutes; fluffy rice, one-half cup uncooked rice; buttered spinach, two pounds spinach, seasoning, butter or margarine; India relish, see recipe above; whole wheat bread, four slices; butter or margarine; cottage pudding, 12 marshmallows, one-fourth pound semi-sweet chocolate, cut up, three tablespoons milk, two beaten eggs, one and one-half cups milk, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla, four servings sponge or light layer cake; heat marshmallows, chocolate and milk, make custard of eggs, one and one-half cups milk and salt and combine with chocolate mixture, cool, add vanilla, serve on or between layers of cake; coffee (for adults), three tablespoons coffee; milk (for children), two cups milk.

Wartime Puddings

GRAPE JUICE SPONGE MAKES A DELICIOUS AND IMPRESSIVE PUDDING WHEN COMPANY COMES.

By Mrs. Alexander George

NOW that crisp appetite-stimulating fall weather is here again, desserts can become heavier and richer. Which reminds me that molasses, a sturdy favorite in grandmother's time, is on the wartime preferred food list. It is a splendid and easily obtainable source of iron, has good keeping qualities and is flavorful and economical.

One of the better autumn desserts is New England Indian Pudding, packed with minerals and vitamins and on the thrift list. It can follow a thick soup or scrambled egg main course. This dessert will practically carry the meal. Pour 4 cups hot milk over one-third cup cornmeal placed in double boiler. Add 1 teaspoon salt and cook, covered for 30 minutes, over low heat. Stir frequently. Add one-half cup molasses, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, one-eighth teaspoon ginger and 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Bake 2 hours in greased baking dish in a slow oven (300). The secret of the goodness of this pudding lies in the long, slow baking.

New Englanders often like to serve their Indian Pudding hot, topped with vanilla ice cream. Plain cream will do however.

Grape Juice Sponge: 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin, one-half cup cold grape juice, 1 cup hot grape juice, one-fourth cup sugar or one-third cup light corn syrup, one-fourth teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 egg whites. Soften gelatin in cold grape juice and dissolve in hot juice. Add sugar (or corn syrup), salt and lemon juice. Cool, and when mixture thickens and is almost set, beat with wire whisk or spoon until frothy. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into one large or individual molds that have been rinsed out in cold water first, and chill until firm. May be piled directly into dessert dishes, if desired. In this case it is not necessary to unmold. Serve with cream or a custard sauce made of egg yolks.

Rice fig pudding appeals to all ages and is another substantial, slow-cooking dessert suggested for chilly days. Cook one-third cup rice with two cups milk and one-half teaspoon salt for an hour in covered double boiler set over low heat. Stir several times with fork. Add three tablespoons sugar, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one-half cup figs (or dates or currants) and one tablespoon butter or margarine. Mix and stir in one teaspoon grated lemon rind. Bake 50 minutes in greased baking dish in slow oven. Serve warm or chilled with cream or fruit sauce.

Another pudding filled with fall goodness is Surprise Betty. Mix together one and one-half cups cubed bread, four tablespoons butter or margarine (melted), two and one-half cups sliced apples, two tablespoons molasses, one-fourth cup sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon each of cloves, salt and grated lemon rind and one-third cup orange juice. Bake an hour in covered baking dish in moderate oven. Uncover the last 10 minutes to brown the top. Serve warm with cream, hard or lemon sauce.

My Day -O- By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Sunday.

TOMORROW at the St. George Hotel in Brooklyn, N. Y. Youth Aliyah, a young group working under Hadassah, will start a fund raising campaign to help the young Jewish people of Europe. All of us know what horrors of persecution have done to the Jewish people in the last few years throughout Europe, and I think it is well that young people of every faith and of every race, should join together to help save other people from suffering if they can. There are many kinds of suffering which these young people have been through. It is obvious that years of starvation and hardship have taken a toll in physical health. We must try to learn about diets and provide the best possible food for these children in the years to come.

But there is also a scarring of the mind and of the spirit, and that is harder to heal in youth than physical defects. In the future, the results of this suffering will have to be met by understanding as young people meet throughout the world. This is a fund raising campaign which Young Aliyah is starting, but we hope that it also be a campaign which will create greater understanding among youth for the future.

I have a postcard which asks me to advise some appropriate things to put in a Christmas box going to a young man in the Army in England. England can be a cold place through the winter months, and I think wool socks, handkerchiefs, chocolate candy, a hot water bag (if you can find one, or have one to spare), small paper covered editions of books or recent small magazines, and writing paper, might be very acceptable. I suppose the suggestion of a hot water bag sounds very "sissy" for a soldier, but I assure you he would find it pleasant. In any case, he can exchange it, or give it to anyone who has been kind to him in England, for one cannot buy a hot water bag there. When we were there a year ago, Miss Thompson and I each had one and left them behind for friends, by request.

It has turned cold up here. Yesterday, however, was warm enough for an out-of-door picnic. The colors of this season and the whole countryside are still lovely. The sun, when it is out, is still warm enough to make sitting in it very pleasant and not too hot. Some friends were with us for our picnic, among them a young Marine, who was wounded in the early fighting on Guadalcanal. He is only a boy, nineteen-and-a-half, but he has many decorations and I think his family must be very proud of his record.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE been separated from my husband for almost two years. He treated me pretty bad. Our children are ages nine and three. My husband has now been in the Navy for over a month. Before he left he pretended he wanted to make up, but I knew it was false, though I let him think I believed him sincere. He told me he trusted me and would send for me as soon as he is stationed somewhere. During our separation he always gave me money for the children. Though he says he trusts me he left the money with his sister to pay the allotment to the children each week, and this hurt me very much. I wrote about this but he never answers my questions, just writes a lot of mush which I know isn't true. Since I wrote him about the money, I haven't received any for three weeks, so he must have written his sister not to give me any more. I know, too, that when he returns on furlough he will go to his parents, not to me, though he will expect me to treat him like a wife. How shall I treat him when he comes?

A. M.

It is possible that your husband has had a change of heart and is more sincere than you give him credit for. Going into the Service with the prospect of goodness-knows-what ahead, has made many a man pause and think about things he had not done straight thinking about for a long time. It is possible that your husband now feels his responsibility, realizes he loves you, and wants to provide for you and the children. But he wants also to be assured of your good faith. If you are divorced from him you are entitled to support for yourself and the children if so directed by the court; if not divorced, then you are entitled to the usual allowance the wife of every Service man of his rank receives for herself and her children. I think it would be well to wait, till your husband is here on furlough, then have a frank talk with him about the matter. To know that he has a wife waiting for him, a home and children to return to after this conflict is over, will do as much to make a real man of him as the discipline of the Army.

Dear Martha Carr:

I KNOW definitely that my husband is unfaithful, and I am sure I do not love him any more and never will. I have made many sacrifices for this man, have kept the home up in every respect. He tells this woman he's in his early forties when he's in his late fifties. When he married me he told me he had been married once before, but later I found that I am his third wife. I discovered also that in his youth he had served time for a crime but I had married him and made the best of it, though these things shocked me, and worked right along with him to make a home and educate our children. He never takes me or our children anywhere; always this other woman and hers, anywhere any time she calls. They are seen together so much they are the town talk. I honestly want him to have this woman, for I am not bad looking myself, and there is someone interested in me, though I have made him keep his distance because of my self-respect and my love for my children. Our children know of their father's infidelity, other children at school have thrown it in their faces. What do you advise?

A FAITHFUL WIFE.

Any woman who has lived with her husband and reared a family should think a long time before getting a divorce. For you to leave your husband and count on the fact that you can pick up another one is not good sense. He is apt to be in a panic, when he discovers you expect him to marry you, matrimony being quite out of his line. Such men usually turn up missing and you will have your own living and that of your youngest child to make, unaided. Be wise, swallow this humiliation and wait for your husband to recover from his middle age madness and return to you, which he will do. If it came to the showdown he would choose you and your children in preference any day. This other woman has simply momentarily bewitched him. Forget the neighbors and the tattling children, work out your problem in relation to yourself and your husband only. He'll stray back again.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THE fact that very few men can endure to see a woman advertise her shortcomings by daubing something on her face in public, and that 99 out of 100 moderns do this, and other repair work in the presence of every man they go out with, is presented from a new angle, by an employer.

"I eat my lunch in the plant cafeteria. One day I happened to sit down at the same table where my secretary and several of her friends were just finishing their lunch. They sat on and we talked. After a while my secretary opened her bag and took out nail polish, and opened the bottle—and then proceeded to apply the stuff on her nails. Later, back in the office, I told her that I thought the dining table—even in a cafeteria—was not the proper place to make up her face, let alone her fingers! She seemed surprised and acted hurt, but said nothing. Since then I have wondered if I was too hard on her. I'd like to be reasonable and give her a break by softening my reprimand, if I was in error. If you modify my version of good taste, I'll tell her."

TO THIS I agree, that making up one's nails in public is bad manners though not half as bad as combing her hair. Also, I can think of an excuse for applying what might be called first aid to one or two nails that were threatening to split. In other words, had she been carrying a bottle of nail lacquer for use as a liquid court plaster, that would have been all right, but the table is certainly no place for nail cleaning and filing, nor even putting on polish!

DEAR MRS. POST: My wedding invitations were mailed (formal ones) and then as my fiancée was sent at the last minute on a special assignment for the Army, the ceremony had to be postponed. Notices followed to each one. Now we are planning the wedding again—this time what kind of invitations should be sent?

Answer: Telephone messages, personal notes, or printed cards simply saying the postponed wedding of Miss Mary Smith to 2nd Lt. Henry Hobson will take place (state where—when). Or, if you live in a small town where there is only one newspaper, an announcement could be printed in the morning paper, such as a—"Notice to the friends of" (and repeat the above).

Vitamin Need Is Supplied in Average Diet

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE inquiry I received today from some distressed individual who wanted to know whether it is safe to take vitamins except when ordered to do so by the doctor, reminds me of a conversation I had only the other day with a gentleman at my golf club who was sitting in the sunlight. He said something to the following effect: "How in the world did our parents and grandparents get along when they couldn't get vitamins, although I will say that they are very expensive because I just got a box of them and they cost me $7.50."

I asked him what he had had for lunch and he said carrots, cabbage and beans. So I called his attention to the fact that he had engulfed quite a lot of vitamins in his regular meal, which was just the way his grandparents got theirs. And just the way Adam and Eve got theirs. When Eve ate the apple she may have got quite a dose of sin, but she also got quite a wad of vitamins A, B, C, and a little B-2.

IN HIS CARROTS my friend got about 2700 units of Vitamin A, about 50 units of B, and about 10 units of C. In his cabbage he got A, B-1, C and B-2. In his beans he got A, B-1, C and B-2. I asked him if he ever took any orange juice, and of course he said he took it every morning, so I said, "You get plenty of Vitamin C."

Then I asked him whether he ate any meat and he said he ate a lot of meat and eggs, and I said, "Well, you get about 450 International Units of B1 in the ham, and nearly everything but vitamin C in the eggs, and since he was sitting in the sunlight he was manufacturing vitamin D in his skin, and so he was practically getting everything he needed without the $7.50 box of tablets. And also the way his grandfather got vitamins was just the way he was getting them—to wit, through his food."

People who are worrying about their vitamin intake should go to a large nutrition experiment laboratory and watch them trying to process food so as to get all the vitamins out of it. Or even worse, to get all of one vitamin out so they can make controlled experiments.

VITAMINS became a human requirement by a process of adaptation to environment in the course of evolution. It is perfectly simple and scientific to imagine animals who do not need any vitamins at all. Plants are living organisms that in the course of evolution manufacture their tissue mostly out of sunlight, air and water.

But the food that animals, and later man, ate contained vitamins and the animal organism gradually adapted itself to utilizing them so it grew to be a habit that they couldn't get along without. Did you ever develop a habit that you finally couldn't get along without? Yes, you developed one, which is that your food must contain vitamins.

Of course, to answer the original question: It is safe to take vitamin pills, but tough on the pocketbook—$7.50 versus .07½ cents.

Take My Word for It

By Frank Colby

WORDS TO WATCH

THE words "pleat, plait," and "plat" cause much confusion. The words are apparently variations of the Latin placare, "to hold together." They have about the same meaning generally, but "pleat" is preferred for folds in cloth, and "plait" or "plat" is preferred for a braid of hair or other material: "And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head."—Matt. xxvii:29.

Pleat rhymes with meet, as: pleat.

Plait rhymes with mate, as: plait.

A comparative newcomer among speech corruptions is "een" for "ing," as "try-een" for trying, "sing-een" for singing, "fight-een" for fight. I say a comparative newcomer, for I first heard the peculiar contortion about six years ago from the lips of a United States destroyer captain. Since then I have noticed it in the speech of many persons, but I cannot say that it is typical of any particular part of the country, though I have heard it oftener in the East than in the South and West.

At any rate, I should advise teachers to try to stamp out "een" for "ing" among their students, for it is a difficult error to overcome once it is habitual. Indeed, those who say "speak-een, eat-een, walk-een," etc., are not conscious of any irregularity and will often deny having said "een" at all.

Relax If You Want to Stay Young

Tense Nerves and Muscles Create Fatigue and Offset Your Personality

By Patricia Lindsay

TENSED muscles and nerves make for jerky movements, cause fatigue, create unloveliness of figure. Why suffer? To be limber is to be young. Your muscles and bones will do your bidding in a graceful, easy manner. Your carriage will be regal and smooth. You will not feel fatigued after the least bit of exertion.

If you have gone along for a long time without exercising you must begin exercising slowly. If might take thirty days before you feel and show the benefit from your perseverance. But here are some splendid limbering exercises which you can practice. First ten minutes a day and then add two minutes each day and work up to three-quarters of an hour. These exercises are not planned to slim you; they only limber stiff joints and muscles and relax tensed nerves. Young or old may practice them:

1. Sitting on a chair, pull abdomen in and up forcibly; straighten shoulders, place fingers on shoulders. Slowly force elbows back, forward, and back in wide circles. Stretch, stretch, slowly. Your bones will make noises. But let them.
2. Sitting in same posture, stretch neck upwards, chin level; SLOWLY turn head far left and far right. DO NOT STRAIN. Simply stretch slowly.
3. Lie down on the floor. Point toes to ceiling. Let arms fall overhead limply. Stretch. Stretch. Stretch. And yawn.
4. Still on back, bend knees, place feet flat on floor. Holding spine and shoulders to floor, stretch your neck and slowly raise head off floor. Hold it for slow count of three and then lower it slowly. This is a splendid exercise.

5. Lie flat on floor, bring abdomen in and up, bend knees to chest; arms fall at ease at sides. Slowly force both knees to right and then to left, breathing easily as you do so. Upper part of body should be held fast to floor—the movement is in waistline. Learning how to relax is an invaluable lesson. When one eases tension (sometimes through stretch movements) one invites beauty into the body.

Whenever you feel tired and "tied up in knots," take time out to relax.

You see, no good comes from exercising if you are not relaxed while you go through the routine. That sounds like a contradiction, doesn't it? Well, it isn't. If you go to a first rate exer-

A Psalm for Today

-O-

By Elsie Robinson

WHEN I am tired and bitter and sick of this futile life we lead, I take up an old book. Its cover is faded and its pages are yellow with age. But there is a source of life within it which never fails.

There is one part in it that always comforts me. It was written thousands of years ago by an old man. He had not always been a good man. He had been reckless and wanton in his youth and had snatched at life with greedy hands. But with age had come wisdom and great power. And though he was King of Israel, he often sat at evening on his flat roof like any peasant and bared his heart in simple words.

King David composed those words for his own day and his own people. But they have come down to us through the ages soothing our fear, easing our pain as though he lived today. And there is one, called the 130th Psalm, which I and thousands like me have read during many a midnight. Boys fighting in the Pacific, in Italy, are reading that Psalm today. . . sobbing women clutching tear-stained telegrams in their hands are reading it. . . great leaders, sitting in desperate consultation are turning to it for strength. Do you remember its words?

Out of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O Lord. Out of the depths of my bewilderment and rebellion and ignorance have I cried. Why has this endless horror come upon the world? Why hast Thou let it happen to us? Why must innocents suffer and the unborn be branded with its pain?

Lord, hear my voice; let Thine ears be attentive to the voice of my applications. Yet, even as I ask, I know part of the answer. For none of us are guiltless of this world-wide crime. We all are stained with the blood of fear and hate and greed which caused it.

If Thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand?

But there is forgiveness with Thee, that Thou mayest be feared. I wait for the Lord; my soul doth wait, and in His word do I hope.

My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning.

Out of this night of horror send me a new ray of hope and understanding, O my Father. Let me see the world as I have never seen it before—as part of my own intimate concern and responsibility. Let me see my fellow man as my brother, regardless of his color or condition or creed. Send Your light into the deepest part of my heart. Cleanse me of my selfishness and egotism—purge me of my intolerance. Give me a new heart as I enter the new day.

Out of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O Lord. Lift me from the depths into which I have lowered myself. Set me upon the right hand of the divinity and give me the courage at last to share Your eternal crusade for love and decency!

Your Stars

-O-

WHAT TO EXPECT TOMORROW

Sun in Libra. General Tendencies — Do not blame me, but I will say at once that each and everyone tomorrow is apt to take a contrary attitude, and to be in need of genuine understanding before evening falls. It is because of the positive and martial influences all about us, so make allowances for it. Women will need to show great tact in dealing with men at this time, even the best.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday. Your ambition and energy will be at topnotch during the next 12 months, and your professional status should benefit. You may notice this during December and April, when your earning power will also be high. Do not forget your friends and family, however, for you tend to be entirely absorbed in business and may lose out socially. Attend to all.

Tomorrow's Weather. The mysterious force of Electricity governs the position of the solar system tomorrow, and it truly is mysterious and stimulating to the imagination. The coming age will be one in which we will learn about this power; we only work with it at present. We do not understand it. It is one of the great elements of the universe and a study of even its simplest uses opens up new realms to our eyes.

else instructor today, the chances are she will make you lie beneath a heat lamp to relax your muscles before you get down on the mat to kick and roll. Much time is spent on teaching students to relax and to retain good posture while exercising.

Try these to ease tension:

1. Lie on your back. Pull up your right knee and clasp your hands about it to hold it as close to the chest as possible. The left leg remain on the floor. Stretch it as much as possible pointing the toes. Relax. Reverse exercise. Five times with each leg.

2. Lie on your back, pull knees up toward your chest, clasp your hands around them. In that position rock forward and backward 10 or 12 times (this will be difficult to master at first).

3. Lie flat on your back and place arms over head. Keep hips as flat as you can. Roll your shoulders over to the right, then over to the left. You should feel a twist at your waistline—that is where action takes place.

4. Lie on your back and keep shoulders flat on floor. Roll the right hip up and over to the left side, then back to starting position. Then roll left hip up and over to the right side, and back to position. Again the action takes place in the middle muscles. Do this slowly until you master it, and then work up speed.

5. Lie flat on the floor. Bring both knees up to the chest; arms at ease, shoulder level. Force small of back to touch floor. When it does then rock gradually from side to side as you hum. Then stretch out and go limp for 10 minutes.

Unquestionably, it is a bad percentage to jeopardize a small slam in order to try for a grand slam, but this observation does not apply to the hand in question. True, the North-South bidding was extremely aggressive, but the salient fact remains that the grand slam contract should easily have been fulfilled. The correct play is as follows:

Declarer ruffs the heart king, leads a trump to dummy and ruffs a second heart, then leads another trump to dummy. This reveals the nonbreak in the trump suit. Declarer must now ruff a third heart, then enter dummy with a diamond (or a club) and ruff the last heart with his own last trump. He now enters dummy for the fourth time with a club (or a diamond) and cashes dummy's trump, thereby drawing East's last trump. On this trick declarer discards his losing club and it is then a simple matter to cash declarer's three top diamonds for the fulfilling tricks.
